Reagan Plans No Extension Of Food Levy

Governor Claims Tax Unnecessary; Begins Trip Today

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said today he will not propose extending the state sales tax to food.

The governor told his news conference that placing the levy on all food purchases is "not necessary or desirable."

His tax study task force of businessmen had suggested the tax be extended to purchases of food from markets and to all food taken home from restaurants — now exempt from the five per cent tax.

STUDY REPORT

The study group had said the rate could be lowered and the poor given rebates as part of an over-all program of tax reform. Last week, Reagan said he was giving this "very serious consideration" for the tax overhaul plan he will offer to the Legislature.

The governor ranged over a variety of issues in a half hour session with newsmen just before he flew east on a trip to Tulsa, Okla., Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Pa., and New York City. The trip combines state business with fund raising for the Republican Party.

Reagan said both the University of California and the state colleges will not receive the budget requests they are seeking from the administration. Reagan's budget for the coming fiscal year, expected to hit $5.5 billion, will be presented late this month or in early February.

He said that he agreed with a special regents committee that has reportedly recommended a $156 a year increase in the University of California academic fees to replace his own defeated tuition plan.

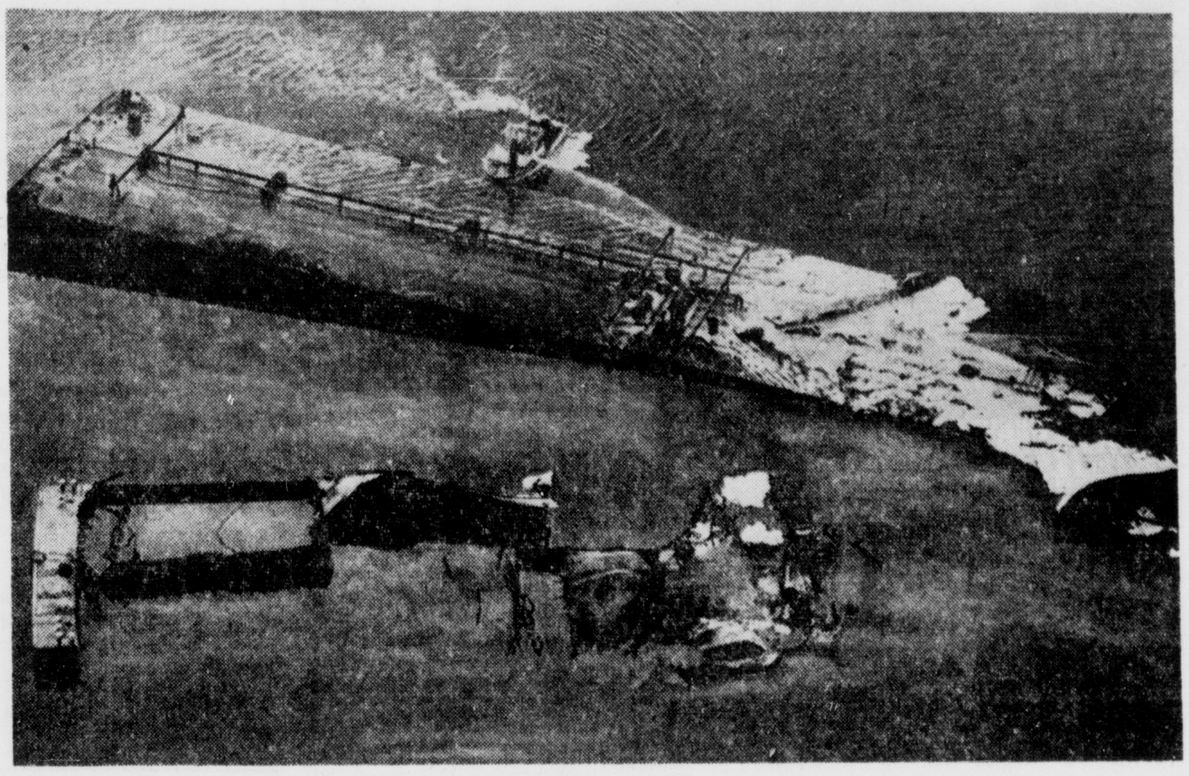
On other matters, Reagan:

Claimed the support of the state bar in his battle with California Rural Legal Assistance Inc., a federal war on poverty organization that angered the governor by leading a successful legal assault on his medical aid cutbacks.

DEFENDS TRIPS

Defended his out of state speaking trips. He said all speeches have been scheduled when he was traveling east, anyway — either on state business or to a national governors' meeting. After this week's trip, he said, "I have no plans to take any extensive trips at this time."

Shrugged off a public opinion poll showing his presidential stock dropping, saying "I think it's a tribute to my unceasing efforts to say that I'm not a candidate."



CHANNEL INFERNO — A U. S. Coast Guard boat sprays chemicals on wreckage of a barge that collided early today with a freighter in the Houston Ship Channel. All aboard the freighter escaped in lifeboats through the blazing waters. (AP Wirephoto)

Inferno Ties Up Houston Ship Area

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The freighter Christiane smashed into a string of gasoline-laden barges in the Houston Ship Channel early today, turning the water into an inferno of blazing fuel exploding in shocks felt and seen for 30 miles.

There were no serious injuries as two American tourists, the captain's wife and 3-year-old daughter and 27 officers and crewmen from the Christiane fled through the blazing waters in lifeboats.

Traffic was choked off on the ship channel, one of the busiest in the nation, until midmorning when Coast Guard units began allowing ships to pass through the gasoline-laden waters with caution.

One of the barges flamed up anew shortly after dawn before the fire was tapped out and the gasoline barges were towed to anchor amid fireboats on the side of the channel.

The Christiane limped toward Galveston for repairs.

The collision occurred about 12:30 a.m. just south of a highway tunnel between the suburbs of Baytown and La Porte, which is 30 miles southeast of Houston.

The Christiane, a 372-foot craft of Liberian registry owned by Christiane Shipping Co. of Bermuda, was outbound toward Port Arthur when it struck the barges being pushed by the tugboat Barbara Waxler.

One barge was empty but the other two bore 30,000 barrels of high octane gasoline which exploded, spraying fire across the chilly waters of Upper Galveston Bay.

Help was quick because rescue units along the heavily industrialized waterway had just finished dealing with an explosion and fire two hours earlier and 12 miles upstream at a Shell Chemical Co. plant. Four men were hurt, one critically, in that unrelated mishap.

Park Delay Plea Held 'Cheap Raid'

Board In Uproar At Idea

By WAT TAKESHITA

A San Rafael realtor's request that the state delay purchase of the 2,100-acre Brazil-Souza Ranch in order to consider other sites created an uproar this morning before the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

A livid Peter H. Behr charged that the entire negotiation for the Brazil-Souza addition to Mount Tamalpais State Park and the $4 million set aside for the purchase would be jeopardized.

'CHEAP . . . RAID'

"If we waver at this county level, at this board level, at this time, we won't get a damn thing," warned Behr. "I think this is a cheap, low-down second class raid. . . ."

The "raid" as described by Behr came in a request from A. R. Roumiguiere, who represents Carson Realty Co., which owns 3,000 acres in San Geronimo Valley, bounded by Samuel P. Taylor Park, Camp Tamarancho, and Marin Municipals Water District lands.

The item was not on the regular agenda, but Roumiguiere spoke during the time allotted at 9 a.m. for expression from the public. As it turned out, the ensuing hubbub took up amost two hours, with Behr and Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen tearing into each other.

DEBATE'S UPSHOT

The final outcome was approval of a much-amended motion by Supervisor Thomas T. Storer, putting the time on the agenda for next week for an oral report from County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney on (1) the status of state negotiations on the Brazil-Souza property, (2) whether special legislation would be needed to consider other property, (3) the extent of jeopardy in which the $4 million state bond fund would be placed

At the same time, the supervisors agreed that there is no change in policy at this time on the county interest in acquiring the Brazil-Souza Ranch, and the Board would take no significant action.

Roumiguire's request for a 30-day delay got support from a half dozen residents of San

COUNCIL CONTEST?

Landlords Map Rare Ross Race

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Because of an ordinance that was passed five years ago, a contest for the Ross Town Council is in prospect for the first time since 1960.

The Ross Property Rights Association, which claims more than 100 members representing 40 parcels of property, plans to back at least one candidate, and possibly a slate of three, in the April election.

Expiring are the terms of Natalie G. Lewis, Thomas W. Jones, and Dr. W. James Davison, all serving now by appointment. None of the three has as yet announced plans to seek re-election. However, on past performance, if any of them decided not to run, a friend would be found to take his or her place and there would be no contest.

Only once in the last decade—when hardware merchant James T. McLaughlin made an unsuccessful council bid in 1960—has there been a genuine election for Ross town offices.

The property owners group has upset the apple cart as result of a slow burn over a zoning ordinance that was passed in January, 1963, to take effect this month.

The ordinance decreed that rental units in Ross, long existing as non-conforming uses under the town's single-family residential zoning, must be abadoned within five years after its passage. That made this month the deadline.

It provided that the council could grant variances to those who applied within six months after passage of the ordinance.

The six months passed without incident. But last spring, becoming belatedly aware that under the ordinance, second and third houses on their properties must be vacated by January, 1968, a group organized the Ross Property Rights Association. It published a notice of intention to amend the zoning ordinance to delay its application to the nonconforming houses.

The group circulated a petition and got sufficient signatures for a ballot measure, then learned that there apparently is no legal provision for amending an ordinance by initiative.

Last month, the association published another legal notice, of intention to repeal the ordinance, and began circulation of new petitions.

The town council acted to head this off by introducing an amendment which would extend the grace period for the non-conforming uses to July, and allow variances to be granted on ap-

Gang Members Charged With Two Slayings

By STEPHEN COOK

With eyes downcast and hands trembling, two members of a Santa Rosa motorcycle gang appeared in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to be charged with killing a San Rafael barber and his wife.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the double slaying, which included robbery, rape, strangulation, several gunshots and stabbing, was "one of the most brutal murders I've encountered."

DAUGHTER QUESTIONED

The suspects charged with the Friday night killings are Kenneth Allen Preston, a bearded, 20-year-old drop-out from Santa Rosa Junior College, and Johnny Lee Sommerhalder, 24, on parole for assault with a deadly weapon.

They are accused of killing Curtis O. Ackley, 27, and his wife, Shirley, 34, in their house trailer near Smith Ranch Road, Las Gallinas. (See page 4 for funeral arrangements.)

Undersheriff Sidney Stinson said today he believes two more men were involved in the robbery-motivated murders. He declined to state the basis for this belief and said he has no names of suspects.

The slain woman's daughter and Sommerhalder's brother, who are sweethearts, according to Stinson, unknowingly led sheriff's deputies to the arrest of Sommerhalder and Preston early Sunday.

FRIDAY NIGHT

Deputies said they went Saturday to question Mrs. Suzanne Mulkey of Fulton, Mrs. Ackley's daughter by a former marriage, because she saw the Ackleys at about 6 p.m. the night of the murder.

During the questioning, they met Richard Sommerhalder of Rohnert Park, who has been dating Mrs. Mulkey.

"We learned that the boyfriend had a brother who was a parolee with some violence on his record. We learned he ran around with a real rough group," Stinson said.

Deputies also discovered that Johnny Sommerhalder had been to the Ackley's trailer house once to pick up some clothes for

Anti-U.S. Viet General Given Boot

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON — South Vietnam's most outspoken anti-American general has been replaced as commander of the forces on the western and southwestern approaches to Saigon.

The new commander, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Van Thinh, took over the 25th Vietnamese Division from Brig. Gen. Phan Trong Chinh on Jan. 14. The division has been rated by both Americans and Vietnamese as the worst in the country.

American pressure for nearly two years failed to force the ouster of Gen. Chinh, and the issue developed into a major dispute. Senior Vietnamese officers agreed with the charges of Chinh's ineffectiveness but refused until recently to fire him because they didn't want to appear to give in to American pressure.

Chinh was put on sick leave about a week ago, and informed sources said he still is in that status. There had been no previous indication that he was ill.

The new commander of the 25th Division is considered tough and aggressive. He also is said to work closely with American advisers, something Chinh prided himself on not doing.

Also from Saigon it was announced today that U.S. and Allied troops have killed more than 5,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in ground action the past two weeks.

Much of the killing took place in battles along the Laos-Cambodia border of South Vietnam, fighting that observers said may have prompted the resurgance of Communist action in Laos.

The spokesmen said 2,216 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week. Added to the 2,868 reported

Death Toll 300-Plus In Sicily Earthquake

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — The casualty toll in Sicily's catastrophic earthquake moved steadily up today as new tremors spread more panic through the devastated western tip of the Mediterranean's largest island.

The unofficial toll rose to more than 300 dead, nearly 1,500 persons missing and more than 1,500 injured. Officials said with that many missing, the final death toll might be 500 or 1,000. (See picture, page 3.)

As new waves of undulating shocks toppled ruined walls in shattered communities, a growing army of rescue workers fought against the clock in a desperate search for buried survivors still alive under the ruins.

Gigantic bonfires lit up the snowy fields and vineyards where thousands of refugees spent the night in the open. Families salvaged chairs and tables from the rubble of their villages, eating bread and milk brought by rescue workers and reliving the catastrophe before dawn yesterday.

Tens of thousands of survivors of the island's worst earthquake in 60 years spent the freezing night out of doors, wrapped in all the clothes they could find and in blankets rushed in by rescue teams.

Several more tremors rolled through the area during the night, convincing the survivors of the desirability of remaining outside.

Even in the two largest cities of western Sicily, Palermo and Trapani, where there was no serious damage, hundreds bedded down in cars and tents.

The havoc yesterday evoked memories of the terrible earthquake of 1908 that crumpled the city of Messina and took 75,000 lives.

Narcotics Arrest For Sausalitan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Sausalito physician was arrested at his office here today after being indicted by the grand jury on felony charges of illegally prescribing narcotics and falsifying medical records.

Dr. Donald Churchill, 49, of 106 West Street, Sausalito, was booked on 13 counts of writing and issuing prescriptions for other than a legitimate purpose and on four counts of making false statements in his medical records.

Last month, Churchill was arrested on two other counts of prescribing narcotics illegally.

Inspector Charles Wettstein of the San Francisco police said undercover policemen have been obtaining narcotics prescriptions from Churchill since last September.

In November, Churchill was questioned by the San Francisco coroner's office about a long-time addict who died from an accidental overdose of morphine and barbiturates.

Churchill, whose offices are at 1316 Pine Street, was released in $6,250 bail after being booked at city prison. He is to be arraigned in Superior Court later this week.

Russia Is Given Adriatic Base

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Yugoslavia has given the Russians a naval base at the Adriatic port of Split to help shore up President Gamal Abdel Nasser's regime, the Israeli newspaper daily Maariy reported today.

The paper's Paris correspondent said reliable foreign sources reported the agreement between President Tito and Soviet leaders has been kept secret, but observers have noted that Soviet warships sail regularly between Split and Egyptian ports.

The agreement was reached shortly before the Egyptians sank the Israeli destroyer Elath with a Soviet-built missile boat on Oct. 21, the paper said.

Drop In First Time Juvenile Offenders

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Youth Authority says it admitted 464 fewer first-time juvenile offenders last year than in 1966.

The 8.5 per cent decrease is the second in two years. The decline reflects increased rehabilitation programs at the local level, CYA director Heman Stark said today.

Forecaster Still Calls For Sun

Rain clouds are supposed to blow away tonight leaving fair skies tomorrow, the Weather Bureau forecast.

Temperatures in the 50s are predicted tomorrow, with tonight's low 35 to 40 degrees. Winds of 5 to 15 miles per hour are predicted.

Rainfall in Marin for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today was: Terra Linda .05, Belvedere and Mill Valley .07, Sausalito .08, Bolinas .09, San Anselmo .14, Larkspur .18, Novato .20. Rain totals for the storm ranged around two inches in Marin.

New York Hit By Taxi Strike

Temperatures in the teens and biting winds up to 35 miles an hour made hailing one of the few driver-owned cabs in operation a test of endurance.

The one-day work stoppage, called in an effort to force higher fares that would raise drivers' pay, could be just a warmup for a full-fledged strike, the leader of the drivers' union warned.

London Cancels U.S. Jets, Sets Early Far East Pullout

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today announced a $2.4 billion cut in spending which included cancellation of a $1 billion order for American-made F111 swingwing jet fighter-bombers and withdrawal of British defense forces from the Far East and the Persian Gulf.

Although Wilson canceled the order for 50 of the American F111 jets he will still have to pay the manufacturers, General Dynamics Corp., an estimated $130 million in penalties. The rest of the saving includes spare parts and interest on loans to pay for them.

The cuts were approved by the cabinet last night and outlined to the House of Commons by Wilson in a 40-minute speech. They were made to save Britain from financial chaos and to reap the maximum benefit from the November devaluation of the pound.

His spending slashes extended into every phase of British life and promised a future of more austerity. The first major cuts he announced were in defense spending.

As had been expected, he announced the 42,000-man British forces in the Far East will be withdrawn by the end of 1971, four years earlier than originally scheduled.

(In Washington, the Pentagon said: "We very much regret the action." The Defense Department recently sought to forestall the threatened F111 cancellation by adding $100 million more of U. S. "offset"

Inmates Still Refusing Food

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—Hungry inmates refused breakfast again today as a hunger strike at the maximum security prison entered its third day.

Warden Carl Hocker said he met with the inmate council last night and was advised prisoners would continue their sitdown and hunger strike in protest to the prison administration.

"Their decision is the same," Hocker said. "They want to return to the good old days."

Papandreou's Next Stop Likely U.S.

PARIS (AP) —Leftist Greek political leader Andreas Papandreou arrived in exile from Greece today and said he "no doubt will go on to the United States.

"Whether I will go to Washington, go back to teaching, or what, I cannot say now," said Papandreou.

Rebel Assumes Governorship

Williams, 49, leaves Congress after 21 years in which he became known as a staunch conservative, fiery segregationist and outspoken critic of President Johnson's administration, to take over the governor's chair.

Williams

While stamped as a conservative and segregationist, Williams more recently has advocated a position of moderation.

Mississippi can never move forward, he warned in a recent speech, by "following prophets of doom and despair and by clinging blindly to the past." The motto of ideal Mississippi leadership, he said, should be: "We must be firm, but not unreasonable; resolute, but not foolish."

Williams decided to run for governor last year after House Democrats purged him of his seniority because he supported Republican Barry Goldwater in the 1964 presidential campaign.

X15 Is Reported In Fund Shortage

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The successful series of test flights of the X15 rocket plane may be discontinued for lack of funds, the Los Angeles Times said today.

A space agency spokesman said there will be no provisions for the program in the 1968-69 budget and that about half of the $6 million 1967-68 budget is left. With careful spending, the flights might be extended through the fall, the spokesman said.

The X15, developed by North American Rockwell Corp., has hit a top speed of 4,400 miles an hour and a peak altitude of 354,200 feet.

Reagan Proves Champion As GOP Money Producer

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan of California — the Republican Party's hottest box office attraction—set out today on a new four-state speech-making tour.

State GOP chairman James W. Halley said Reagan's latest foray — certain to keep alive speculation that he is eyeing the White House — will make the governor the party's champion fund-raiser.

By the end of this tour to Tulsa, Okla., Washington, D.C., New York City, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and St. Louis, Reagan's out-of-state travels will have added more than $2 million to GOP campaign coffers since he became governor a year ago. The current trip's take is predicted at $500,000.

Thomas C. Reed of Ross, special assistant to the Republican state Central Committee, who arranges Reagan's national tours, said he expects at least one more junket to Nevada, Arizona and Washington, D.C.

"We are still getting an unbelievable number of requests for speeches," said Reed, Reagan's former appointments secretary. "There's no question that the governor is in demand."

Despite his extensive out-of-state speaking tours, Reagan has consistently maintained that he is not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

No Evidence For Housing Recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The housing and home mortgage industries have apparently weathered the first money crisis of the new year and leaders report no evidence the 1966 housing recession will be repeated in 1968.

But industry sources said the potential home-buyer can expect to pay high interest rates throughout the year although some slight reduction is anticipated if Congress raises taxes and cuts federal spending.

They don't foresee interest rates dropping below the six per cent level—a point surpassed in early 1966—in any event.

The industry optimism stems in part from preliminary reports indicating the nation's savings and loan associations—the largest single source of home loan money—escaped a possible large withdrawal of savings early this month.

Economists both in and out of government had feared savers might withdraw money from their accounts in early January for investments paying a higher interest rate.

The turn of the year was the key time since it marked the end of one investment period and the start of another. A saver could collect a dividend on his account at that time and then withdraw the money, thus reducing the amount available for mortgage loans.

The reduced level of deposits in 1966 shrank the amount of mortgage money and gave the housing industry one of its worst years since World War II.

Exact figures on S&L savings won't be available until next month but some industry sources say they foresee the chance of a net gain rather than a decline for January.

Louisiana's Private School Funding Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Civil rights attorneys were armed with new legal weapons to push for a speedup in school desegregation today after scoring key wins in a series of Supreme Court decisions.

The high court, in rulings handed down yesterday, affirmed a lower court order barring state payments by Louisiana to pupils attending private schools and agreed to review two cases from Tennessee and Arkansas challenging the pace of school desegregation.

In the Louisiana decision, the U.S. District Court held that the law was aimed at maintaining segregated schools and thus was in violation of the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

Jack Greenburg of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund (LDF) said that LDF attorneys "will now extend this precedent - setting victory to other southern states which still use this approach to avoid school integregation."

The Tennessee and Arkansas cases, together with a Virginia case the court accepted on Dec. 11, will give the high court an across-the-board look at the pace of school desegregation in the South.

The Tennessee case, involving desegregation of Jackson City public schools, alleges that junior high school attendance zones were gerrymandered to perpetuate segregation as far as possible.

The Virginia and Arkansas cases have a common issue. They attack "freedom of choice" plans where evidence shows these are unlikely to bring about desegregation and where other methods, such as rezoning, could accomplish the job faster.

In other important decision, the court let stand a lower court ruling that the Health, Education and Welfare Department may order a cutoff of federal welfare funds to Alabama because the state failed to comply with non-discrimination requirements.

MANILA (UPI)—At least 29 persons were reported dead today in floods and landslides caused by nine days of continuous heavy rain on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao.

Should State Take Over On Welfare?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislators today pondered the best way to provide local tax relief, with Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh suggesting the state simply take over some programs now run by counties.

The Democratic legislative leader told a luncheon of Los Angeles County supervisors yesterday, "We're probably going to have to develop some state program to eliminate programs which you bear" the burden of administering.

And today, Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, chairing the Municipal and County Government Committee, and chairman John G. Veneman, R-Modesto, of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, declared, "Unless we provide new revenue sources for local government, the present level of services cannot be maintained without an increase in property taxes."

Yesterday, two senators introduced legislation to take away some of the revenue local government now counts on.

Sen. Tom Carrell, D-San Fernando, proposed that the tax on business inventories be eliminated starting next year, a move favored by Gov. Ronald Reagan. He also introduced a bill exempting personal effects and furniture from property taxation above $100.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, put forth legislation to give everyone 65 or older an automatic $2,500 tax exemption on their home if they have a yearly income below $4,000.

Experts say this group of low-income , elderly homeowners with only a fixed source of revenue is hurt most by the property tax.

Unruh suggested that the state take over full control of the multimillion dollar welfare program, now run by the counties under state guidelines with local, state and federal funds.

He predicted, "The Democrats probably will support the take-over of welfare." Reagan, however, has indicated he would oppose this and instead feels counties should have more control over welfare.

Bill Drafted To Seal Ex-Criminals' Records

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Legislation to allow the sealing of arrest and conviction records of individuals under certain conditions was introduced Monday by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

The measures would:

Permit a person convicted of a felony to petition a court to have his records sealed if he has no further convictions after five years.

Permit a person convicted of a misdemeanor to petition a court to have his records sealed if he has no further convictions for three years.

Permit a person arrested but not convicted to petition a court to have the record of his arrest sealed.

Permit sealing of records of persons convicted who have fully complied with the court's sentence and completed and fulfilled terms of probation.

Wipe out the record of arrest of a person whose case is not brought to trial, dismissed or results in acquittal.

Prohibits an employer from asking any question of a job applicant regarding misdemeanor or traffic convictions or arrests not resulting in convictions of a felony or misdemeanor.

Residency Issue Worries State's Welfare Director

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A U.-S. Supreme Court ruling against welfare residency requirements would probably cause a rise in cost of California welfare programs, says the state's welfare chief.

The high court is expected to rule next June on the legality of laws in 41 states — including California — which require terms of residence before welfare benefits are granted.

California is among several states protesting federal court rulings against the residency laws.

John C. Montgomery, director of the state Social Welfare Department, said in an interview that an adverse Supreme Court ruling "would definitely have a measurable effect" on California welfare costs. He said he couldn't predict how much the hike would be.

Montgomery said the residency guidelines are needed as a "basic budgetary control" and that if they are outlawed, there should be national standards to take their place.

In California, minimum residency is five years for Old Age Security, three years for Aid to the Disabled, one year for Aid to Dependent Children. No minimum time is required for blind welfare recipients.

The federal government is involved, Montgomery said, because it pays half the cost of these programs.

Frank Sinatra Back In Mexico

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Frank Sinatra, barred for 16 months from Mexico, has returned. The ban was lifted Aug. 4.

Sinatra refused to comment on the ban when he arrived Saturday. He was barred from the country because of his film "Marriage on the Rocks," which the government felt gave a bad impression of Mexican border towns.

Sources close to Sinatra said his daughter Nancy and several friends were expected to join him.

plication until July 1. The amendment will be up for final passage Thursday night.

This, however, has not satisfied the Ross Property Rights Association. It plans court contests of any attempt by the town to force abandonment of the rental units, and has retained attorney Bryan J. McCarthy to represent it. And it plans to attempt to seat its own candidates on the council.

Dwight Coddington, chairman of the property rights association, said the group plans to support one council aspirant who has not yet announced his candidacy Coddington, declined to name him) and "expects to support more."

"This will be a genuine election," declared Coddington.

If it is, it will indeed be a novelty for Ross.

The history of Ross Town Council membership for the past decade runs like this:

1958—John Witter and James McNab elected unopposed. McNab resigned in September, 1960, and Frederick S. Allen was appointed to succeed him.

1960—In the lone race during the decade, incumbents Arthur Kanzee Jr., T. Bruce Selfridge and Harry C. Scott won handily, with 260, 256 and 260 votes, respectively. Challenger McLaughlin got 97 votes. Kanzee died in February, 1961, and Russell G. Smith was appointed to succeed him. Selfridge resigned in October, 1961; William G. Bricca was appointed his successor.

1964—William G. Bricca, Harry C. Scott and William P. McAndrew elected unopposed. Bricca resigned in December, 1964, and was succeeded by Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., who in turn resigned last July and was succeeded by Dr. Davison. Scott resigned in August, 1965, and was succeeded by Mrs. Lewis. McAndrew resigned in May, 1967, and was succeeded by Thomas W. Jones.

SLAYINGS

Mrs. Mulkey, Stinson said.

This information led deputies to the run down house in Santa Rosa early Sunday, where they arrested Sommerhalder, Preston and two others after a brief gun battle.

Ronald Edward Long, 25, and Thomas L. Caswell, 22, both of Santa Rosa and arrested for harboring fugitives after the battle, were released to Sonoma County sheriff's deputies yesterday.

Caswell is charged there with assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and Long was scheduled to begin trial today in connection with a knife assault last May at a Santa Rosa tavern in which two men were injured.

District Attorney Bales said any charges of being accessories to a murder would have to be filed against them in Sonoma County, where the gun battle occurred.

Stinson today gave this chronology of the murder night:

Mrs. Mulkey visited her mother and step-father at their Commonwealth Center Barber Shop at 4180 Redwood Highway and the trailer house, leaving them at about 6 p.m. Friday.

The Ackleys dined at a Terra Linda restaurant, leaving for home at about 9:30 p.m.

When they arrived home, they apparently surprised their killers in the act of stealing Ackley's gun collection. They were killed at about 10 p.m., he said.

Ackley was shot four times, His hands were taped behind him and a pillowslip was over his bloody head.

Mrs. Ackley was raped, strangled and shot twice in the head. She was stabbed twice and a knife was found protruding from her back. She was nude, but for a sweater pulled over her head.

Preston and Sommerhalder, who operates his family's service station at Rohnert Park, were arraigned on double murder charges yesterday before Municipal Court Judge Hadden W. Roth.

Preston, his eyes puffy and red, stared at the floor during the proceedings and his hands shook noticeably as he held the typewritten complaint which charged him with the slaying.

Sommerhalder incorrectly called Halder in yesterday's Independent-Journal, also kept his eyes downcast as the two men asked for a day in which to contact their attorneys.

Judge Roth said no bail will be set and ordered the two, both members of a Santa Rosa motorcycle club called The Grim Reapers, to return to court later today for entry of pleas.

Bales said he is considering calling a special meeting of the Marin County Grand Jury to indict the two behind closed doors rather than proceeding with the public preliminary hearing.

Reward Offered To Nab Vandals

The Lucas Valley Homeowners Association is offering $100 for the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for damage to its pool at the community center at Mount Shasta Drive and Idylberry Road Dec. 22.

Jack Berman, association president, announced the reward today. He said vandals released chlorine gas into the pool. Deposits from copper tubing which carries the gas spilled into the pool, Berman said.

He reported the community center has been a recent target of vandals. Persons who may suspect the pool vandals should call the sheriff's office, Berman said.

cy hospital at Montevago. About 200 persons were believed killed in the wreckage. Another 100 persons were reported missing at Montevago.

Gibellina, with 7,000 inhabitants, was totally destroyed and so was the smaller town of Salaparuta. The major part of eight other towns was badly damaged.

The stricken area was a triangle whose corners are the towns of Salemi, Poggioreale and Santa Margherita di Belice. It is considered a Mafia stronghold.

Italian President Giuseppe Saragat scheduled a flight from Rome today for a first-hand look at the disaster area. Interior Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani toured the section yesterday. Pope Paul VI sent what the Vatican called a "conspicuous" amount of aid money, and city and provincial councils throughout Italy set aside contributions for the homeless.

Some 2,900 firemen and soldiers have so far been dispatched to the island off the Italian boot.

Girl, 19, Faces Marijuana Charge

A 19-year-old girl was arrested on a charge of possessing marijuana early yesterday after police stopped the car in which she was riding on Fourth Street at the Miracle Mile Plaza.

Terry Jo Lynch, address unknown, was arraigned in Municipal Court and ordered to appear for plea Thursday.

Patrolman Barxdal W. Stinson said he followed the vehicle from the Bermuda Palms Motel on Francisco Boulevard after noticing the Lynch girl and the driver acting suspiciously. As he followed, Stinson said, the girl appeared to be hiding something in the car.

A bag containing suspected marijuana was found hidden behind the front seat, police said. The driver was not arrested.

Lagunitas School Plans Discussed

The staff and trustees of Lagunitas School District last night discussed plans and ideas for the non-graded primary school to be constructed next to Lagunitas School.

The school will house pupils who normally would be in grades one through three and may include a kindergarten, said Richard T. Frydenlund, vice president of the board of trustees. Pupils will be taught by teams of teachers.

Nineteen staff members were present, or abost three-quarters of the staff, Frydenlund said. Construction of the school is expected to begin next month, to be completed by fall.

Cars Parts Taken

Patricia Dildine of 845 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, reported to San Rafael police yesterday that her locked car was entered while at the Suburban Auto Electric and Auto Repair shop at 123 Carlos Drive, Terra Linda, and the auto radio, turn signal mechanism and car lighter were taken. The items wer valued at $60.

Lawyer Says Policeman Struck Him

A 42-year-old San Rafael attorney said in Marin Municipal Court yesterday that a San Rafael policeman clubbed him over the head with a set of handcuffs, knocked him to the county jailhouse floor, then arrested him for assaulting a police officer.

CHARGE DROPPED

On the district attorney's recommendation yesterday, a charge of obstructing a police officer, subsequently filed against Cresalia, was dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence.

Weissich said Cresalia came to the county jail early Feb. 24, 1967, to talk with his wife, who had been arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence of drugs and alcohol.

WOMAN FINED

Madeline T. Cresalia, 40, pleaded no contest yesterday to driving under the influence of drugs and liquor on San Pedro Road Feb. 24. Judge Hadden W. Roth fined her $230 and placed her on probation for six months.

Luchessi said he arrested her after her car nearly struck his near Lowrie's Yacht Harbor.

killed the previous week, it raised to 5,084 the number slain through Saturday.

In action yesterday Viet Cong terrorists slipped into Tan Tao village, seven miles west of Saigon, and machine gunned to death the local police chief, Nguyen Van Man, and the commander of a platoon of defense troops, Nguyen Van Tai.

In the air, U.S. jet fighter-bombers flew 121 missions against North Vietnam yesterday striking near the capital of Hanoi and the major port city of Haiphong, spokesmen said. They said the pilots hit mostly in the southern panhandle where the cloud cover was more scattered and left bridges, barges and other supply line targets exposed.

The 5,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed in action in the new year reflected repeated guerrilla attempts to smash American and government positions along South Vietnam's western border—from the Marine bastion of Khe Sanh just below North Vietnam to U.S. Army infantry posts hundreds of miles to the south.

Mrs. McDowell Is Sentenced

I-J Special Report

SUSANVILLE — Mrs. Jennie McDowell of San Rafael has been sentenced to one to 15 years in state prison for the manslaughter shooting of her husband.

Mrs. McDowell, 27, was denied probation in a Lassen County Superior Court hearing yesterday after a jury convicted her of shooting her husband Robert, 35, with a rifle. The shooting happened during a day-long argument Oct. 15 in the couple's hunting tent, 65 miles north of Susanville.

Guitar Among Items Stolen From Home

A total of $123 in goods, including a $50 guitar, have been stolen from the home of Nancy A. Elkington at 122B Ross Street, San Rafael police reported today.

The occupant said the thieves entered the house early last week through a bathroom window. Also stolen were $48 in shirts and $25 in records.

Cambodia Arms Cache Linked To Tito Plot

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian authorities today reported finding a huge Communist arms cache intended for use in assassination attempts against Prince Norodom Sihanouk and President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia.

Police said the arms were found among the ancient ruins of Angkor visited in November by Jacqueline Kennedy during her "dream" trip to Cambodia.

Tito, the Yugoslavian Communist leader probably most hated by the Chinese Communist regime, arrives tomorrow and is scheduled to visit the ruins later this week.

An official police announcement said the arms included about 1,000 hand grenades and were to be used by pro-Chinese Communists.

Sihanouk charged in a radio speech Friday that Cambodian Communists planned to "blow Phanom Penh sky high" in an effort to kill the Yugoslav leader but he did not mention himself as being a target of assassins.

He said police and army troops had uncovered about four crates of hand grenades and had arrested a group of Communists who he charged were backed by Red China. The Cambodian chief of state last week twice met Chester Bowles, the U.S. ambassador to India who was dispatched by President Johnson to Phnom Penh for talks aimed at preventing the spread of the Vietnam war.

They agreed to a plan for strengthening the International Control Commission to patrol the Cambodia-Vietnam border.

Angkor, the ruins of an ancient Cambodian city built between the 11th and 12th centuries, is located deep in the jungle 150 miles north of the capital. The ruins are one of Asia's top attractions.

The police announcement said the arms were put there by members of Cambodia's small Communist party.

They also charged the party, backed by "foreign elements" from Red China, North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, had distributed leaflets urging revolt against the 42-year-old prince.

purchases of British-made arms.

(The increase raised to $825 million the purchases which the United States had agreed to make in Britain to offset $2.9 billion worth of U. S. weapons —including the F111s—that the British planned to buy over the next few years.

(The Pentagon had no immediate comment on whether U. S. purchases in Britain would be reduced because of the F111 cancelation.)

Psychiatric Exam Is Ordered In Stabbing Case

Marin Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley yesterday appointed two psychiatrists to examine Mary Jo Goodson, 36, accused of stabbing her 3-year-old son to death Dec. 30.

Doctors Gerald Hill of San Rafael and Walter Rapaport of Oakland were instructed to submit their reports for a sanity hearing for Mrs. Goodson in Superior Court Jan. 29.

Proceedings on a murder charged lodged against Mrs. Goodson were suspended Wednesday when Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith expressed doubt about her sanity.

She is accused of stabbing her son, Richard Anthony Goodson Jr. His body was found in a storage room of their apartment building at 725 Kerner Boulevard, San Rafael. Police said the boy was stabbed at least twice in the back.

Valley To Study Poverty Quiz

The San Geronimo Valley Association took no action last night on Marin County Economic Opportunity Council replies to questions submitted by the association on Marin's poverty program.

The association, meeting in Lagunitas School, set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Jan. 29 in the school to discuss the EOC replies, which were released yesterday.

The association asked the board of supervisors to postpone a hearing scheduled for today until Jan. 30 so that the EOC response can be studied.

Critical of the poverty program, the association asked the EOC to list criteria for poverty benefits, means of establishing target areas and budget figures.

Three-Car Crash Injures Woman

A 33-year-old Fairfax woman suffered minor injuries yesterday when her car was involved in a crash with two others on the Miracle Mile, just west of the Second Street junction.

Anne E. Sorelle of 381 Tamalpais Road was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for a cut lip and face bruises.

The other drivers were identified as Mary O. Andersen, 53, of 11 Archangel Court, also Fairfax, and Alfred Lauffenberger of 215 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo. The accident happened at 8:15 a.m.

BOARD

Geronimo Valley, who described the Brazil-Souza Ranch as barren wasteland not worthy of a state park and without areas for campsites.

Mrs. T. C. Wellman, president of the Marin Conservation League, who was surprised that the matter came up without notice, immediately took aim at Roumiguiere's proposal. "To wait now is catastrophe," she declared.

"I don't think it is right to change horses in midstream at this point."

Supervisor Behr pointed out that the purchase of the Brazil-Souza Ranch came after years of effort and the entire campaign can go down the drain if the county wavers.

"It is interesting to find so many people in the Woodacre area suddenly taking such late-found interest in the state acquisition," said Behr. He said it is not coincidence that people from that area came to back Roumiguiere. "I'm not saying it's a conspiracy but I'm saying it's too little and too late."

"It is not in accord with democratic procedure to take significant action at the behest of seven or eight people coming off agenda," stormed Behr. "If this is the way democracy works, the hell with it."

Behr demanded that if the supervisors want to change policy at this point, they must do so by announcing a public hearing and giving the conservation group a chance to speak.

"It is not out of order to pass a resolution saying only that we encourage the state to make the best possible purchase in the Mount Tamalpais Study Area," said Chairman Kettenhofen.

"Name one case where action was taken when the matter was brought up off agenda" demanded Behr.

Supervisor John F. McInnis said he would not vote for any change in policy until he got a clear understanding of how the state negotiation is proceeding on the Brazil-Souza Ranch.

"The only question is I don't want to see the $4 million placed in jeopardy," said Storer.

All supervisors agreed that nothing must be done that might lose the state bond money earmarked for Mount Tamalpais acquisition.

OBITUARIES

Curtis, Shirley Ackley

Double funeral for slaying victims Curtis O. Ackley and his wife, Shirley Ackley, will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackley were found dead Saturday in their trailer home near Smith Ranch Road, Las Gallinas.

Ackley, 27, and his wife, 34, owned and operated a barber shop in Commonwealth Center, San Rafael. Both were members of Barbers Local 582 of San Rafael.

A native of California, Ackley was also a member of Napa Grange. He is survived by his parents, Merle and Alice Ackley.

Mrs. Ackley was a native of Wyoming. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Suzanne Mulkey of Fulton, Sonoma County; her mother, Mrs. Mary Cooper; a brother, Gary Cooper; five sisters, Mrs. Rema Daum, Mrs. Arlene Daum, Mrs. Erma Bishop, Mrs. Betty Jo Ison and Mrs. Barbara Williams; and a granddaughter.

Burial will be in Rocklin Cemetery in Placer County at 3:30 p.m.

JOSEPHINE GARZELLI

Requiem Mass will be celebrated Thursday for Mrs. Josephine Garzelli, 75, of Petaluma, a former Marin resident who died Sunday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Gazelli was born in Italy and came to the United States at the age of 21. She and her husband, Clemente (Dick) Garzelli, operated a dairy ranch in Hicks Valley, Marin County, for 37 years. They retired 15 years ago.

Mrs. Garzelli was a member of the Daughters of Italy.

She is survived by her husband; a son, Elmo Garzelli of Petaluma; two daughters, Mrs. Elvina Giacomelli of Petaluma and Mrs. Eleanor Tobin of Novato. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Maria Lavio of Petaluma and Mrs. Carolina Mastaglio in Italy, and two brothers, Louis Stefenoni Sr. of Petaluma and Thomas Stefenoni in Italy.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m., tomorrow at Sorensen Funeral Chapel, 400 Washington Street, Petaluma. The Mass will be at 10 a.m., Thursday at St. Vincent's Roman Catholic Church, Petaluma. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

MARGERY SUTCLIFFE

Margery W. Sutcliffe, a former resident of Mill Valley, died yesterday at her home in Walnut Creek after a long illness. She was 77.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Sutcliffe lived in Marin about 30 years. She was employed as a clerk with the Sausalito School District for many years before she retired about 12 years ago.

She moved from Mill Valley to Walnut Creek on her marriage to Clarence Sutcliffe two years ago.

She was a member of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley. Mrs. Sutcliffe is survived by her husband.

Funeral will be Friday at 1:15 p.m. from Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Graveside services will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

WARREN COLEMAN

WEST TISBURY, Mass. (AP) — Warren R. Coleman, 67, veteran actor best known for his role as "Crown" in the original Broadway production of "Porgy and Bess" in 1935, died Saturday night. Coleman played the same role in a 1942 revival of the show. He also played the part of Kingfish in the original Amos 'n' Andy radio program.

AILEEN STRONG

Mrs. Aileen H. Strong of 74 Dominga Avenue, Fairfax, who was found dead at her home last Thursday, was survived by three daughters, not two as listed in Saturday's Independent-Journal.

A daughter, Mrs. Carol Ann Scheffler of Redwood City was inadvertently omitted from the list of survivors.

Marin Stores Heed Boycott Of RCA Goods

Two Marin television and radio stores have complied with a request by the American Communications Association, a union, that they stop displaying RCA products.

Another store, Klein TV in San Rafael, will not "push" RCA products, owner George A. Klein said, and will attempt to substitute products of other manufacturers for parts replacement when possible.

Operators of Melody Radio and TV in San Rafael and Cedos TV Co., Kentfield, said they will not display RCA products, after they were picketed.

The union has been feuding with RCA over wages and posted pickets at eight Marin stores Saturday asking customers to boycott RCA products. Union officials say 110 local workers employed in Marin and San Francisco by RCA were locked out of their jobs after pay negotiations.

Power Failure Hits Greenbrae

The break plunged most of Greenbrae and the main section of Larkspur into darkness from 7:50 p.m. to 8:11 p.m. effecting about 1,500 residents, said Leonard Robertston of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

He said another 50 customers in the Redwood High School area had to wait until 9:55 p.m. before power was resumed.

Thefts Reported From Two Cars

Two cars parked at the Ark on Waldo Point were burglarized last night, sheriff's deputies reported today.

I. V. Navarro of San Francisco reported the radio and a rear speaker were stolen from his convertible, along with a pipe, a roll of tape and a piece of leather in the car. He reported the theft at 9:45 p.m.

At 10:30 p.m., Donald Parducci of Ukiah reported the theft of the custom steering wheel and a sheepskin jacket from his car.

$26.4 Million Paid In Property Taxes

Marin County taxpayers paid $26,488,679 in first installment property taxes, out of the total tax bill of $51,981,989 for the 1967-68 fiscal year.

This leaves $25,495,310 to be paid in the second installment, which becomes delinquent on April 11. This means that 50.96 per cent of the year's taxes are now paid up, with 49.04 per cent to be paid by the April deadline, Tax Collector-Treasurer Stanley J. Fontez reported.

Last year at this time, 51.47 per cent has been collected. This year's first installment payment was slightly lower than last year's because the state decided to pay only the first installment taxes on homes financed by Cal-Vet loans. Until last year, the state always paid both installments at one time.

Taxes not paid by delinquency deadlines are assessed 6 per cent penalty. "Non receipt of the tax bill does not relieve the taxpayer from being penalized," said Fontez. "Those who haven't received their tax bill should contact our office."

Opening Drug Abuse Session Slated Tonight

The opening session of four programs telling of drug use and abuse will be at 7:30 p.m. today at the Sir Francis Drake High School Little Theater.

Dr. Sanford J. Feinglass, head of the drug abuse education program for the Marin County schools office, will speak on "Pharmacology of Drugs." The series is sponsored by the adult education department of the high school. A fee for the series covers all members of a family.

Dr. David Israelstam, consultant on drugs to the schools office, will speak Jan. 23 on "Drugs and Behavior: Sanity and Insanity," and Mrs. Israelstam will speak on "Parents and Drugs."

Dr. William Lamers of Kentfield, a psychiatrist, will speak on "Amphetamines and Related Drugs — Use and Abuse" on Jan. 30.

Harold Nawy, student at the School of Criminology at the University of California, will talk on "Useful Drug Use" on Feb. 6.

All addresses will be at 7:30 p.m. at the little theater.

Cleveland Browns fullback Jim Brown gained 1,863 yards rushing in 1963, or 98 yards more than the entire Green Bay Packers gained on the ground when they led the league in that department in 1946.

Special Classes Report Is Due

Progress report and new plans for classes for children with special problems at Henry C. Hall and Neil Cummins Schools are scheduled to be presented at the 8 p.m. meeting Thursday of the Larkspur School trustees at the administration office.

Reports on the classes, both under the county superintendent of schools office, will be given by Mrs. Edna Koehler, Hall School teacher, and Phyllis Kaplan of Cummins School.

Also scheduled is a request by Supt. Milton S. Cohen for approval of the board for attendance by 15 teachers at the third annual Marin Conference on Behavior Modification at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary Feb. 15-17.

CASE OF BEING 'TALKED' OUT OF HIS HOUSE

MISSION HILLS (UPI) —James Young has been literally talked out of his $27,500 home by his daughter, Collene, 19, whose husband, Lynn Wade Cross, 20, was stationed with the Navy in Adak, Alaska, last year.

"In just 38 days last summer they made 95 telephone calls to each other," Young said. "All the calls were charged to my phone. The bill was $4,509.81."

Unable to raise the cash to pay the bill, Young put his home up for sale. General Telephone Co. has placed a lien against the dwelling to make sure he doesn't forget.

Arraignment On Marijuana

Two youths arrested by San Rafael police Sunday night were arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on charges of possessing marijuana.

Randolph W. McCarley, 18, and Gary V. Scozzafava, 20, of 35 Acacia Road, Fairfax, were referred to the county probation office for possible certification to Juvenile Court.

Plea On Check

Terry Jo Lynch, 19, of Leafwood Circle, San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court yesterday to a charge she passed a forged check for $125.85 at Luana's, a San Rafael dress shop, Nov. 11. Her case is to be set for jury trial Monday.

Sheriff Urged To Set Up 'Counterintelligence' Unit

A "volunteer counterintelligence service" should be added to the Marin sheriff's office to improve law enforcement and crime prevention, a Sausalito housewife declared in a letter to the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Dorothea Carr Miller (Mrs. H. C. Miller), who gave her address as 35 Lower Crescent Avenue, Post Office Box 657, asked the supervisors to authorize the added service for the sheriff.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, who received a copy of the letter, said he has an intelligence bureau, which has been in operation since early last year.

"I appointed Undersheriff Sidney Stinson and Inspector Kenneth Irving to the bureau, and they have been working right along in cooperation with all intelligence units throughout the state," said the sheriff.

"Instead of a volunteer counterintelligence unit, we rely on the entire public to aid and assist us with any information on espionage, sabotage, or subversion. We welcome and encourage any information from any member of the public."

The sheriff said he believes his office is as well prepared as any other department of comparable size in intelligence work.

Sheriff Mountanos said he is writing Mrs. Miller to thank her for her interest and explaining the intelligence bureau and its operation.

New Commodore For Yacht Club

Albert Moffat of Fairfax has been installed as commodore of the Loch Lomond Yacht Club, San Rafal, succeeding Vernon A. Ouellette, who has moved from Marin.

Peter Larkins of San Rafael is vice commodore; William E. Malin of San Rafael, rear commodore; Robert Montgomery of Daly City, fleet captain of power boats; Dr. Alvin J. Harris of San Rafael, fleet captain of sail boats; Ed Hart of San Francisco, port captain; Dr. C. J. Peetz of Corte Madera, treasurer, and Michael Wedge of Novato, secretary.

GM

Our lowest priced car—Nova

Hard to believe. Nova's totally new looks. More powerful engines. Yet still economical to buy. Its low price includes improved rear shock absorbers, and independent front coil suspension. Together, they soak up the road shocks. A wider front and rear tread gives you a smoother, steadier ride. New safety features offer more protection and security for your family. Take a ride, and you'll know why Chevy II Nova Coupe is Chevrolet's beautiful value leader for '68.

Our lowest priced wagon—Nomad

This rugged new Chevelle has 84 cubic feet of cargo area. Your choice of three all-vinyl interiors which beautifully withstand the rigors of families, fishermen, flowerpots, what-have-you. New wider stance for easier handling. New longer 116" wheelbase for a smoother, more comfortable ride. For power, Nomad's standard Turbo-Thrift Six or new 200-hp V8. Hitch your family to a Nomad, a star performer.

Nova Coupe and Nomad Station Wagon top, Impala Sport Coupe bottom.

Our traditionally low priced Chevrolet

Impala Sport Coupe. Sure it's a big car. And that little marker on the front fender says there's a hearty 307-cubic-inch V8 under the hood. But wait. That's standard, and the gas you put in is regular. So typical of Chevrolet to save you money. And save you care. Protective black vinyl has been inserted in the molding along the length of the body to help keep Impala safe from nicks and scratches from neighboring cars. Main thing to know about Impala: big car, little price.

STANDING UP ON THE ISSUES

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., gives his speaking attitude a little extra altitude by standing on a wood box to address a printing industry gathering. At the dinner meeting last night in New York, he opposed President Johnson's proposed curbs on overseas travel and investments. The industry group presented him with its Benjamin Franklin service award.

McCarthy Urges The Young To Spread Peace Initiative

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has proposed a three-point program to end American participation in the Vietnam war.

The Minnesota Democrat, who is challenging President Johnson for their party's nomination this year, yesterday appeared at nearby Stanford University, a public rally on San Francisco's Nob Hill and a $100 a plate dinner at the Fairmont Hotel. He wound up four days of Northern California campaigning today at a Junior Chamber of Commerce lunch.

In a question and answer session following his speech at Stanford, McCarthy outlined his three-pronged plan to change U.S. policy in Vietnam and pave the way for ending the war.

He said the United States should recognize the National Liberation Front (NLF) of the Viet Cong, negotiate with the NLF and begin a phased withdrawl from Vietnam after the South Vietnamese and the NLF are able to negotiate on their own.

During the speech, the senator departed from his prepared text to urge scholars, religious leaders and young persons to take the peace initiative to the public in 1968. He said the people, rather than administration Democrats, must decide which course America should follow in Vietnam.

McCarthy urged the 2,500 Stanford students to "make your own fight as you see it."

He said the war no longer could be defended morally, economically, militarily or diplomatically.

Asked for his feelings about the current wave of draft resisters in the country, McCarthy indicated they had a right to demonstrate and speak out against something they felt was unjust but had no right to break laws.

Freeholder Election Held Voters' Choice

San Rafael voters could have a choice of leaving the city charter the way it is, electing a board of freeholders to revamp it or having the city operate under general law.

Councilman Louis H. Baar suggested last night that these choices should be given voters before the city called for an election of freeholders.

Maryor C. Paul Bettini, who asked for discussion of the possibility of a freeholder election, conceded that Baar's idea had merit.

There was no action taken and no dates set, but councilmen indicated they wouldn't call a special election this year.

The council also heard a report from County Treasurer Stanley J. Fontez about the Marin County Employees Retirement System.

Under a recent law cities can join county systems, and councilmen wanted to learn what the advantages would be to switch from the state retirement system to the county system.

Fontez said "the costs for benefits received would be lower" with the county bearing the administrative costs.

Councilmen authorized an actuarial study by Coates, Herfurth and England of San Francisco, estimated to cost $750 to $1,000, which they said they would need before making a decision.

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CLAIMS ORDINANCE — Approved first reading of an ordinance governing presentation of claims against the city to bring the municipal code in line with charter revisions approved by the voters last April. Councilmen eliminated a proposed section which would have created a "city manager's fund," which City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen said could be used to finance investigations by his office.

CATV FRANCHISES — Postponed action until Jan. 29 on applications for community antenna television franchises from Tele-Vue systems Inc. and Cable Television of Marin. Only Tele-Vue Systems' application was on the agenda and when councilmen learned there were two applications, they postponed the matter to study both applications.

TOW-AWAY SIGNS — Heard comment from Councilman Harry A. Barbier that signs designating tow-away zones were too small, and agreed that larger signs should be obtained.

COMMERCIAL PARKING — Warned that the 10-minute grace period given to commercial vehicles loading or unloading where there are parking meters will be eliminated, and violators will receive parking tickets. Councilman Fred E. Jensen said there should be an ordinance to prevent commercial vehicles from being stored on city streets on weekends.

HIRING — Hired Wayne D. Tauer, maintenance man I, $512 a month; Harry R. Barbier, (son of Councilman Barbier) police cadet, $420 a month, and Donald Holton, fireman, $608 a month.

PROMOTION — Approved promotion of Robert L. Hodges from maintenance man I to maintenance man II at a salary of $565 a month.

CONFERENCES — Authorized Finance Director Orrin Wendling to attend the California Society of Municipal Finance Officers Conference in Palm Springs, Feb. 7-9, and City Engineer Ely Caillouette Jr. to attend the California Street and Highway Conference at the University of the Pacific at Stockton, Jan. 31-Feb. 2.

PUBLIC HEARINGS — Set Feb. 5 for a public hearing on appeals by Michael Bull, 117 San Rafael Avenue, Raymond L. Ewens, 57 Meadow Avenue, and Gilbert Searle, 8 Ayala Court, of planning commission denials of their applications for five-foot fences.

CLAIM DENIED — Denied a claim by Martin J. Pozzi of Petaluma for $35 for damage to the hood of his car allegedly caused when a city truck went over a piece of lumber and flipped it onto Pozzi's car Jan. 8.

New County Library Aide On The Job

A librarian with a master's degree in library science began working this week in the Civic Center as assistant to County Librarian Virginia Keating.

He is Bruce Bajema, 35, of San Rafael, who was county librarian for Mendocino County for the past three years. His salary in Marin is $790 per month.

Bajema has a master's degree from the University of Washington, and worked as branch librarian in Maryland and in Brooklyn, N.Y., before going to Mendocino County.

He succeeds Phillip Sheridan, who was with the Marin County Library for two and one-half years before resigning last November after one year as assistant librarian.

Bajema lives with his wife and their two children at 420 Prospect Drive, San Rafael. Mrs. Bajema is a professional puppeteer, who had a puppet theater in Holland for 10 years.

Loitering At Northgate Is Under Study

San Rafael City Council last night called for an ordinance to meet the problem of youths loitering at the Northgate Shopping Center.

Councilman Louis H. Baar said he heard complaints of youths harassing people at the shopping center, and Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa suggested that merchants make citizen's arrests.

City Atty. David J. Menary said he was studying a proposed ordinance, but there are legal problems because the shopping center is on private property.

If there are offenses, there should be arrests, but an officer can't make an arrest unless he sees the offense, he said.

Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa said that arrests have been made in the area, and upheld in court. Frequently when a police officer arrives there is no one on the scene except the store owner. "Then unless he makes a citizen's arrest, our hands are tied."

Councilman Harry A. Barbier said if merchants are concerned they should have come to the council. "They're shirking their job."

Menery said, "The kids loiter and hang around and in effect, there is no law to run them off." Loitering isn't unlawful assembly and there is a problem involving constitutional rights, he said.

Baar commented, "It's natural for people who run businesses to expect the police department" to take action.

Councilman John A. Miskimen said, "It's a problem of sitting around with nothing to do rather than an overt act. It would seem to me the police department should work out an ordinance and let us have a look at it." Other councilmen agreed.

Birds capable of being taught to talk include parakeets, parrots, mynahs, crowd, ravens, jackdaws and some species of jays.

ABAG Cooperation Call By San Rafael

San Rafael City Council agreed last night to take a "positive approach" toward a preliminary regional plan proposed by the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Councilmen authroized Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner to notify Marin County supervisors that the position taken by county planning commissioners on the proposed plan was "too negative" in character.

Hotchner said the city had been invited to appear before supervisors next Tuesday to state its views on the county planning commission's recommendation, which was critical of the proposed ABAG plan.

"The position of the county planners doesn't do service to the city of San Rafael or the county proper service," Hotchner said.

Councilmen agreed that a regional plan is needed and took into account the fact that a preliminary plan has limitations because it doesn't have full details.

Hitchhiker Pleads Innocent To Charge

Dennis H. Luftig, 25, of Gate 5, Sausalito, who allegedly became abusive Jan. 5 when a California Highway Patrol officer questioned him for hitchhiking on Highway 101, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge of obstructing a police officer.

The case of Irene McMeans, 24, of Gate 5, arrested when she reportedly tried to communicate with Luftig while he was a prisoner in court, was continued six months to be dismissed if she obeys the law.

Separate Trials On Weapons For The Thoresens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Separate trials have been granted to multimillionaire weapons collector William Thoresen III and his wife, Louise, on charges of violating the federal firearms act.

U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter agreed to the defense request Monday so Mrs. Thoresen would not be faced with the possibility of having her husband's testimony used against her.

Thoresen attorneys yesterday continued a parade of witnesses in support of their motion to suppress the search warrants under which the government seized 70 tons of weapons and ammunition in the Bay Area.

The judge has taken under submission Thoresen's petition for a change of venue because of allegedly prejudicial publicity.

Corte Madera Names Library Merger Panel

Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera last night named five persons to represent the town in a joint committee with Larkspur and the county to study a possible merger of library services.

The five are Mrs. Howard Allen of 30 Prince Royal Passage, Mrs. John D. Conkle of 5 Harbor Drive, Mrs. Alfred Kraeger of 111 Edison Avenue, Mrs. John J. Ramsey of 12 Baltimore Avenue, and Mrs. Joseph B. Wallace ov 134 Buena Vista Avenue.

Colthurst then asked Town Manager Ronald L. Usher to contact these committeemen, all of whom have accepted the appointment, and arrange an organization meeting date with Larkspur and county committee members.

Under study is a merger of the Larkspur library with county branch libraries in Corte Madera and Greenbrae. Colthurst said Larkspur approached Corte Madera in December 1966, suggesting a single central library.

A committee of about 14 persons, including Mrs. Virginia Keating, county librarian, was formed and public meetings held but no action was taken. Corte Madera then asked the county what plans it had for improving the town's branch, and the board of supervisors agreed to reactivate the study.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

RESOLUTIONS — Adopted a resolution approving specifications for a turf tractor to be purchased for about $6,500. Bids for the tractor, to be used mainly in park maintenance, will be opened at 2 p.m. on Feb. 2. Also adopted a resolution accepting completion of a $6,289 project correcting drainage in four areas. Adopted a resolution calling for a municipal election April 9 to elect two councilmen, a town treasurer and a town clerk.

MEETINGS — Councilmen agreed to be present at the special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Town Hall with the Corte Madera Sanitary District board. Meeting purpose is possible consolidation of the district with the city. Authorized Arthur N. Morrison, director of public works, to attend the California Transportation and Public Works Conference Jan. 31 through Feb. 3 at Stockton.

RECORD — Went on record as not opposing a proposed formula by a League of California Cities' Revenue and Taxation Committee that legislation be sought to change the manner of redistribution of cigarette tax money to California cities. The formula wold base return of the taxes on population and sales instead of just on sales.

Peninsula Cities Study Joint Corporation Yard

Sister cities Belvedere and Tiburon may be able to reach agreement on mutual problems of downtown drainage, a corporation yard and a boundary line, officials said in a joint council meeting last night.

Mayor John S. Hoffmire and Councilman William R. Bremer represented Tiburon in the adjourned Belvedere council meeting.

Belvedere Councilman Thomas S. Price, also a member of the Tiburon Peninsula Club, proposed to Mayor Hoffmire that Tiburon consider joint purchase with Belvedere of a piece of club property for a joint corporation yard.

JOINT PERSONNEL?

"This could lead to joint use of heavy equipment and personnel," Price foresaw. He thought there was a "good possibility the club will be interested in this."

Tiburon has previously considered leasing part of the club's land for its own corporation yard. Belvedere has talked about retaining its present yard on Tiburon Boulevard if possible.

Mayor Hoffmire told Price he thought the plan "could be amicable to Tiburon." And that the council would consider it.

NOT 'CHEAP'

When asked the value of the property, Price said that some had been sold earlier to the county and to individuals for $2 a square foot, which councilmen agreed "wasn't cheap."

Councilman Edwin J. Drechsel reviewed drainage problems from the Belvedere standpoint, including the city's concern for more water going into the lagoon and the conviction that drainage should empty into the bay through an outlet in Raccoon Strait, rather than in Belvedere Cove.

A solution to downtown drainage problems has been sought by both cities since Tiburon was incorporated in 1964.

Corinthian Island resident Emerson Best repeated the objections of island residents to use of the cove for drainage. "It is private property," he said and added that residents feel the "costs are way out of line."

PLANS TOO COSTLY

James H. Ewert, on Belvedere's drainage study committee, presented to Tiburon councilmen a plan by Engineer John V. Rumsey for a forced main to the strait, costing $187,000.

Belvedere Councilman Price said he favored an alternate plan from any of those in Tiburon's McCreary-Koretsky drainage report, as he felt neither city could afford them. Some of the plans are estimated at over $500,000.

Councilmen Hoffmire and Bremer requested the material on the Rumsey plan be studied by City Engineer Ray W. Foreaker and by the Tiburon Council.

BOUNDARY PROPOSAL

Tiburon's representatives also promised to take a look at a boundary line at "Belvedere's entrance," which, Councilman Drechsel pointed out, has seven residences inside the Tiburon boundary.

The small section between San Rafael Avenue and Lagoon Road should logically belong to Belvedere, Drechsel said, and its residents feel they do live in Belvedere. He said inclusion of the section in Belvedere would give the city better bargaining power in the future with the division of highways in aligning Tiburon Boulevard.

Mayor Hoffmire told the Belvedere council that Tiburon has learned that the next step in widening Tiburon Boulevard will be from the Redhill area to downtown Tiburon, in 1970 or 1971, rather than from the Reedlands.

Mayor Hoffmire congratulated Belvedere on its handsome "new home" in community center and was told there will be an open house celebration for the remodeled building at 7:30 p.m. before the Feb. 5 meeting of the Belvedere council.

Reagan Will Seek Extra Kidney Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan says he will ask for increased support in his 1968-69 budget for two kidney dialysis centers to overcome financial problems "not as critical as originally imagined."

Reagan made the statement yesterday in a letter to Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, who expressed concern about a reported money shortage at the treatment centers in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Corte Madera Fills Vacancy On Council

The Town Council of Corte Madera last night unanimously approved the appointment of Robert P. Simmons, 33-year-old certified public accountant, to fill the vacancy created by the Jan. 2 resignation of councilman Charles F. Pendleton.

Mayor Edward W. Colthrust, who nominated Simmons, then named councilman William W. Collier as vice mayor, a post also held by Pendleton. This appointment also was unanimously approved.

Simmons, present in the audience, was sworn into office and took his council seat. The appointment is until the April 9 election, the expiration time of Pendleton's term.

Simmons said this is his first venture into public office. He came to California six years ago from Detroit, and to Corte Madera over three years ago from Alameda County. His office is in San Rafael and his home at 138 Edison Avenue, Corte Madera.

He has a wife, Gaille, and a daughter, Stephanie, aged 2.

Pendleton, who served on the council since May 22, 1961, resigned to move to Hollywood.

Fill For Marin Project Needed

Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District needs 75,000 cubic yards of fill from a borrow site near the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control project.

Mogens Ring, county flood control engineer in the department of public works, said a temporary easement is needed for the use of a borrow pit containing compactable fill. The material is needed primarily for building levees upstream of Bon Air Bridge. The borrow site should be close to the Bon Air area, not more than five miles away.

"Any interested party who may have the fill, please contact our office," said Ring.

If any cost is involved, the state will reimburse the county, Ring said.

Innocent Plea To Criminal Abortion

John Francis Milos of San Francisco pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court yesterday to a charge of criminal abortion. He is to return to court Monday for setting of a trial date.

Milos was sought for a year after the death of a Petaluma woman, for whom he allegedly performed an abortion.

Truce Talks Offered In Paper Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The strike against the city's two big newspapers was in its 12th day today with a management group saying it was ready for "meaningful negotiations" and with labor hinting the strike could spread. Business firms reported sales off from 5 to 30 per cent.

The Santa Clara County Central Labor Council voted strike sanction last night, an action that could extend the dispute to the San Jose Mercury and News, noted Douglas Smith, president of Mailers Union Local 18.

BAY-WIDE STRIKE?

Earlier, San Francisco-Oakland Lithographers and Photoengravers voted 119 to 14 to strike the San Francisco Printing Co. and the Oakland Tribune. The printing company publishes the Examiner and Chronicle, already struck by the Mailers.

In Los Angeles, where a strike against the Hearst-owned Herald-Examiner entered its 32nd day, a top county labor leader urged a circulation cancellation drive against the newspaper.

PROBE SOUGHT

In San Francisco, Smith wired California's national lawmakers asking for a congressional investigation of the 1965 merger of facilities by the Chronicle and Examiner.

The telegram said: "Refusal of newspaper publishers to sit down at the negotiating table with members of our union has plunged San Francisco into a news blackout that is a financial as well as a social disaster to the community.

Meantime, Phil Knox, manager of the San Francisco-Oakland-San Jose Newspaper Publishers Association, said in a message to Smith: "Officers of the San Francisco Newspaper Printing Company will be happy to have their representatives meet with you and your interntional representatives upon your call to carry on meaningful negotiations.

Does Name Suppression Promote Juvenile Crime?

Every so often, a story appears in the Independent-Journal about the arrest of a group of young people which carries the names of those 18 years and older but identifies the others merely as "a 15-year-old boy" or "a 16-year-old girl" or whatever.

This is in accord with widespread newspaper practice of not publishing the names of juveniles arrested.

Occasionally, the I-J uses the name of a juvenile who has been charged with some particularly shocking crime, or who already has a long offense record despite his tender years. When we do, there are generally a few calls from persons who labor under the mistaken belief that there is some law against publishing names of juveniles charged with crimes.

ON THE OTHER HAND, we received a note a few days ago from a reader who thanked us for printing the name of a 19-year-old arrested on a marijuana charge but said we should also have identified the boy's father.

The widespread newspaper policy of keeping juveniles anonymous in crime stories rests on the rationale that an under-age boy or girl should not be "branded" for youthful indiscretion.

However, there are many who feel, like the note writer we mentioned, that not only should juveniles' names be used, but also those of their parents. Their rationale is that it is the responsibility of the parents to bring up their children in the way of rectitude, and that they should be punished by the attendant publicity when they fail to do so.

IF NEITHER OF THESE rationales seems entirely satisfactory, neither do many other things in the handling of juvenile crime.

For instance, California law provides that juveniles may be detained for misdemeanors, but specifies that the detention is not considered punishment. This is a fine bit of legalistic semantics which probably means very little to the youth involved.

Those 21 and over stand public trial for misdemeanors. For those under 18, a closed hearing is held in juvenile court. Those 18 to 21 may be treated in either way, at discretion of the court. It is a system of contradictions.

THE STEADY RISE in the rate of juvenile crime — outstripping the rise in adult crime for some years now — scarcely testifies to the effectiveness of the present system.

Perhaps the system merely contributes to disrespect for order fostered by over-permissiveness throughout our society. Perhaps sparing juvenile miscreants from public identification does the same.

As the editor of the San Mateo Times commented editorially when that newspaper changed its policy recently to begin publishing names of arrested juveniles:

"There is growing belief in many quarters, both in California and other states, that the publicizing of the names of juvenile wrong-doers may prove helpful as a deterrent to crime at lower age levels. It is contended that immunity from exposure for young law-breakers breeds more contempt for the law."

The Times did not go so far as to print the names of the juveniles' parents. But some papers have done so.

We have sown the wind with growing permissiveness. The fields of our society are grown rank with the weeds of license and contempt as a result. And we are reaping now the whirlwind of crime and disorder.

Maybe the anonymity accorded young wrong-doers has helped sow the wind with seeds of evil.

Tax Reform Interesting Subject But Problem May Be Insoluble

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — No doubt any proposal for tax reform made either by the Republican administration or by Democratic legislators will be met in various quarters with howls to high heaven — in fact, in almost all quarters where the shoe will start pinching.

So prior to the announcement of any specific legislation on the subject, and prior to introduction of any bills in the legislature, it might be well to examine some of the aspects of the subject and the philosophies which have kept the matter before the legislature for several sessions without action.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN labels tax reform as the number one project for this legislature and presently is studying a lengthy report from a task force which has given comprehensive study to California's tax structure.

Other tax reform programs have been introduced in the legislature in past sessions, but for one reason or another, have not found their way to the governor's office.

The need for tax reform as a simple requisite for equalization of taxes is apparent to almost everyone who pays taxes. The need has been apparent these many years.

The problem has resolved itself into one of how to equalize the percentage of income the individual could reserve for payment of state taxes.

IT BEHOOVES state government, the governor says, to see that the tax structure "is so arranged that it is proportionate, and that you don't find someone with an $8,000 yearly income paying 15 per cent for state taxes while some one at a much higher income only pays five per cent."

Just how the administration will attempt to effect this equalization is not as yet known. One suggestion of the task force was for a change in the sales tax structure, placing this tax on food, with a system of rebates on income tax returns up to a certain level.

Probably the most important item to be considered is tax reform as it will apply to the property owner. In this field, various methods have been proposed which have as yet not gotten off the ground.

ALTHOUGH THE entire subject of tax reform is intriguing, some legislators believe that no comprehensive solution ever will be found which offers any material relief to the taxpayer. This stems from the fact that already it has been shown that one attempt to provide slight property tax relief is a failure, as funds designated for relief have been used by educators to further school expenditures.

These same legislators feel that the solution, therefore, is not a magical change in the sources of revenue, which will result in paying taxes from one pocket instead of the other, but a sound program of reduction of the amount of government to the point where its essentials constitute the only obligation of the taxpayers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Pictures Provide Raucous Evening

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Our homesite, fertilized by an abundance of leafmold, overgrown with streamers of poison oak that climb the trees like under-school-age kids with over-active limbs and glands, lacks a sensitivity to style that our active and affectionate family so far has ignored. That is, until your society editor selected the pictures of the world's best dressed women for printing in the I-J of Jan. 11.

You should be told, I feel, how effective your paper is in our home. (Aside from its wrapping value for fish, its necessary foundation for starting the kindling that burns the dead madrone and oak logs and its protective head-cover blotting out sunlight from my face during Saturday afternoon naps, etc., etc.)

Last evening (Jan. 11) your paper became the conversation piece of the entire family and even took precedence over both Huntley and Brinkley. First, Mama got it from our daughter in an odious comparison of mama's long worn out kitchen sheath with Mrs. Henry Ford II, the best dressed. Then, one of the older boys turned the page and cried: "Wow! Just what Dad needs when he's burning brush or working on the slowed-up plumbing under the house!" I looked. I'm still in shock. The young fellow in the center of the panel of "Emancipated Males," ape-like in build, muscular as one of Gilmartin's Pacific-8 linemen with a chest that needed a shave and armpits that obviously belonged in a gym not too far from a hot shower, is reminiscent of my build of not too long ago. However, I did avoid necklaces in the locker room of the Olympic Club and I did wear a robe that had never seen a laundry. As I recall, it was short to the point of indecency in even an "out" social gathering and it definitely did not flow gracefully about my big, flat feet as does the robe of the guy in the middle picture. As for the other two "boys" pictured on either side of the "gorilla," they're just too pretty.

In closing, I want to thank you for the raucous evening.

Water District 'Fraud On Taxpayer'

Editor-Independent-Journal:

In looking at the lead article in our paper, third section, Pg. 17 of Jan. 9 . . . a few of us who make an attempt to keep up with what is going on in the county will appreciate the subtle meaning in the head given the article, "Operating on Free Rain." If any agency anywhere ever operated on free REIN to a greater extent than our Marin Municipal Water District we have failed to learn of its existence.

Has anyone ever seen an annual statement of receipts and expenditures made up according to proper accounting practices?

Given the authority to levy a monthly tax against each dwelling of from $3.10 to $6.50 and multiply by total habitations in Marin County and one can begin to see that it must take a very special quality of managerial ability to keep this agency operating.

One time years ago this writer bought a house, almost completed, in Laramie, Wyo., a city then of comparable size to San Rafael, and upon inquiry at city hall as to water was told to just go ahead and have my plumber connect to the main . . . that there was no charge — that they used to have a monthly minimum but after all mains had been paid for this was dropped. Their source was from "city springs" above town, same as ours is from reservoir-lakes.

There was no palatial office building covering thousands of square feet, with 16-foot hallways with terrazzo floors, lounges with deep carpeting, overstuffed furniture, pipe-in music, and hundreds of "workers" reading magazines and shuffling papers.

Take a look at the number of private automobiles parked around this "old folks' home" some week-day afternoon.

Yes, they make a charge for connection and meter box — and this charge has been arbitrarily raised from time to time with total disregard for state law enacted in 1961 requiring a breakdown and itemized statement showing how the total is arrived at. In my own experience I was told that the charge would be $2,900 to bring me water 410 feet—but because by crossing my property it would greatly shorten the distance between two points where they were forced (because of inadequate size) to relay the main anyway, they would only charge me $2,400. . .

This writer continues to maintain that the Marin Municipal Water District as operated is one of the leading frauds against the taxpayers of Marin. . . .

Sparrow Finds Staunch Defender

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It has been in my mind for some time to tell you how much I enjoy your editorials about Marin's birds and shy (?) animals. I was also quite indignant at the slur on our lovely gold-crowned sparrows. As I put out seeds, corn meal and bread for the birds in my yard yesterday there were at least eight gold-crowns, several white-crowned sparrows, juncos, towhees, finches, black-chinned sparrows and several I'm not sure of come in at various times and several sing.

Ever since New Year's Day their bird bath has been frozen over, sometimes solid ice, but they still bathe. (Brr!)

Thanks for your nice bits of information, even if our raccoons are not shy.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A GREAT HORSE, a favorite for the Kentucky Derby, found itself domiciled in a Louisville stable between two rather stolid steeds who weren't able to converse intelligently on any subject for more than three minutes. The great horse gave up after several vain attempts, neighing disgustedly to a trainer, "I'm stalling between two fools."

Congress To Tackle Job Corps Again

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The incoming Congress is picking up just where it left off on the long stormy issue of the Job Corps program, which has cost around $900 million since being launched some three years ago.

Directly opposite reports on padding Job Center rolls are pending before a House education and labor subcommittee, headed by Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich.

In one report, John Buckley, Republican investigator, states flatly roll padding took place at the Guthrie, Okla., Women's Job Corps Center — one of the four largest in the country. In another report, Robert McCord, Democratic investigator, contends the padding was technical and that enrollee drop-outs were "administrative leave."

Both reports are based on first-hand investigations followed by several days of public hearings by the O'Hara subcommittee.

THE CASE GREW out of charges by James Tice, former official of the center, that regional anti-poverty authorities had directed Guthrie managers to "falsify daily reports reflecting the 'on board strength' of corpswomen." According to Tice, as enrollees quit or were given disciplinary discharges, that was not reported to OEO until June 30, end of the fiscal year.

Tice testified he was not told "why the records had to be falsified." He stated it was "the impression of center officials that OEO wanted to build the total of Job Corps enrollees to 41,000 in time for the OEO congressional presentation in order to justify retention of all Job Corps centers at current funding levels."

The anti-poverty budget, finally voted by Congress in the last days of the recent session, earmarked $295 million for the Job Corps — the amount sought by OEO.

OEO OFFICIALS in Washington acknowledged the Guthrie Center padding. There was no way they could deny it as the center's records bore out Tice's charges. But they insisted it was not done on orders from Washington.

One document was a May 25, 1967, directive to all Job Corps center directors from W. P. Kelly, head of the program. Titles "Retention," it said:

"The (drop-out rate) is climbing back to a level highly inimical to the efficient and economical operation of Job Corps. . . . I urge and expect your personal involvement in the problem to the end that your voluntary resignations and premature termination figures drop 50 per cent. . . . I consider this of utmost priority and immediacy."

Another piece of accusing evidence was a memorandum Kelly sent the same day to all associate directors, as follows:

"As you know, even a slight decrease in the retention rate makes a tremendous difference in our ability to serve youth and reach our target of 41,000 by June 30. Attached is a 'retention suggestion sheet' which you may find helpful in your and your staff's communication with center."

That this high-powered pressure produced results is shown by the following Job Corps totals in investigator Buckley's report: May 30, 1967 — 36,500; June 30, 1967 — 42,032.

Notes Buckley, "The OEO 'News Summary of the War on Poverty,' dated Sept. 25, 1967, listed only 39,219 youths in Job Corps centers."

In other words, with the heat off, the centers were slipping back again.

IN AN EFFORT to allay more congressional condemnation of the battered Job Corps, subcommittee Chairman O'Hara is privately trying to work out a "compromise" report acceptable to the Republicans. In view of the sharp divergence between the Buckley and McCord findings, that will take a lot of doing.

Trial Of Russian Writers Puts Kremlin On Spot

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When Nikita Khrushchev, early in 1956, denounced Stalinism he opened among Russian artists and writers a Pandora's box which the Communist leadership with only moderate success has been trying to close ever since.

The trouble was that the artists and writers took too literally a phrase in the Soviet constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech and expression.

And from Khrushchev to the present, Kremlin leaders have vacillated between harshness and cajolery in their attempts to determine just how much the people should be permitted to know and to think.

THUS, IN MOSCOW last fall, a young girl hurried home at 4 p.m. to listen to a Voice of America broadcast of the book by the defector Svetlana Stalin.

The "voice" came in loud and clear.

OF A MORE serious nature, but within the framework, was the trial of four persons that opened last week in Moscow.

The four were Alexander Ginsburg, 31, a poet; Yuri Galenskov, 28, a poet and editor of Phoenix 1966; Aleksei Dobrovolsky, 29, a writer, and Vera Lashkova, a student of drama.

None was a writer or poet of any great import and the underground journal, Phoenix, circulated mostly among themselves.

But it also was true that all had been held incommunicado for a year, longer than permitted under the Soviet code of criminal procedure which sets a limit of 10 months, and that their case had attracted names bigger than their own to their defense.

Among the latter was Pavel M. Litvinov, a grandson of Maxim M. Litvinov, a one-time Soviet foreign minister and ambassador to Washington.

Litvinov had defied the threats of Soviet secret police to circulate to the outside world a transcript of a trial last September of three persons sentenced for demonstrating in Pushkin Square in protest against the arrest of the four mentioned earlier.

THE TRIAL of the four also was noteworthy for the audible protests among relatives and other Russian observers of the way it was being conducted.

In late 1962, in an attempt to close the box he had opened, Khrushchev attended an exhibition of Soviet abstract painting and described the results as having been "daubed by the tail of a donkey."

But it was too late.

Last summer Soviet author Alexander Solzhenytsin made a widely publicized demand for a greater literary freedom. It was picked up by Czechoslovak writers and echoed throughout the European Communist world.

And it was not the only one that would change the face of Communism. Aside from economic reforms within the Soviet Union alone have come demands for the independence of the courts and for a choice on the ballots at election time.

Novato Gets Back Of Hand From State On Highway Matters

The City of Novato has been getting the short end of the stick from the state as far as Highway 101 is concerned.

For many years the city tried to get the state to landscape the islands in Highway 101 through the city. These islands were an ugly mess of unsightly weeds and debris. Novato was lucky to get the weeds mowed once or twice a year, and the debris cleaned up — never.

It looked to the north where similar islands in the highway in Santa Rosa were nicely irrigated and the grass was kept green and mowed.

Finally the city took on the job of landscaping the islands in Novato. Although they were state property, the city spent its own money to landscape them. It is still spending its own money to irrigate and maintain them.

NOW COMES ANOTHER push by the state onto the City of Novato. The California Highway Patrol has notified the city that after June 30, it will not patrol Highway 101 from the south curb of Hill Road to the north city limits at Atherton Avenue.

This is approximately one and one-half miles of highway through the main portion of the city which would fall to Novato police to patrol. This is the most heavily traveled section of the highway. It is also the first place where there are traffic lights to stop traffic and the scene of many accidents.

This will probably require an increase in the Novato police force.

This would be expensive to the residents of Novato unless the police took the attitude of actually enforcing the speed laws. Then the fines which they picked up would probably more than make up the added cost to the city as very few motorists obey the speed laws going through the city.

If the police did this, it would probably have another side effect. It would not be long until every motorist from San Francisco to Eureka who has to use the highway would soon be hollering to the State Division of Highways to get a freeway by-pass through Novato.

They would then all be on the side of Novato, which has been trying to get the freeway by-pass ever since the city incorporated eight years ago.

THERE IS A SPECIAL election in Novato next Tuesday. Voters will decide whether they want to bond themselves for $5,750,000 for a street improvement program and $2,250,000 for park acquisition and development.

No one has argued against either proposition on the sample ballot which was sent out. However, opinions expressed by people in a survey seem to show more favor the street issue than for the parks.

In the official polling of the residents, neither proposition had enough percentage to win, so the outcome of the election will depend on those who said they were still undecided.

Whatever one's opinion of the two propositons might be, all registered voters should express their opinion. Then if a big majority vote, whatever the outcome, it will be the will of the people, which is as it should be.

Redwood Elects Student Officers

Wililam Ingersoll, Tiburon senior, has been elected president of the Redwood High School student body for the semester starting Jan. 29.

He replaces Robert Figari, also a senior, from Tiburon.

New vice president is John Jeremy of Greenbrae. Leslie Austin of Larkspur was elected secretary; Linda Kuwatani, of Tiburon, assistant commissioner of finance, and Alex Herrmann of Kentfield, sergeant-at-arms.

The election was held last Thursday and Friday. Elections for class officers are scheduled this Thursday and Friday.

Smoking Habit Halted With Unpleasantness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A psychologist reports he has persuaded heavy smokers to swear off cigarettes by a system of "aversive conditioning" which includes blowing stale smoke in the faces of his subjects.

Dr. Irwin Lublin, assistant professor of psychology at California State College at Los Angeles, said his method basically involves bombarding his subjects with an unpleasant stimulus while they smoke.

Such conditioning methods often have been used in treating alcoholism, he said. "Drinkers are usually given nauseating drugs so alcohol itself makes them sick."

In treating smokers, Lublin uses the senses of smell and taste to break them of the habit.

In one process, the subject smokes a cigarette while a machine blows stale warm cigarette smoke in his face. In the other, he puffs rapidly on a cigarette in time with a metronome until it becomes distasteful.

Of 50 subjects who began the treatment, Lublin said 14 dropped out after a couple of sessions, 16 stopped smoking completely, two others cut down drastically and the others gave up.

Town Meeting Topics Due Thursday Check

Topics for this year's San Anselmo Town Meeting sessions will be considered at 8 p.m. Thursday by the sponsoring Congress for Community Progress, meeting in the all-purpose room of Wade Thomas School.

Dr. Durjit Singh has been nominated chairman of the congress, to succeed James F. Reed, and James McDonald has been nominated vice chairman for the election that night.

Saga Of Immigrants Who Came By Steerage And Found Freedom

Santa may have slipped when he left "Portal to America: The Lower East Side 1870-1925" (edited by Allon Schoner and published by Holt, Rhinehart and Winston) in my Christmas stocking. My guess is he intended it for some New Left sociologist who screams we have done nothing but exploit our minorities.

I suspect the book will be picketed by those authorities who foisted "Land of the Free" on us as sound history, so you may have to buy it under the counter.

But I had a ball with this priceless collection of photographs and articles about an enchanting period and place. Of course, mine is a special interest since my father was one of that surging mass of immigrants who came here in the early '90s.

IT IS A GENUINE saga, this tale of the millions who poured in around that time — Jews, Italians, Irish, Chinese, Poles and the rest who came to the Promised Land in quest of freedom and opportunity. If they came steerage, so had the earlier Pilgrims, and to these newcomers Ellis Island was their Plymouth Rock.

They congregated — with rare exceptions — on Manhattan's Lower East side, turning what had once been a peaceful farmland into a lusty, teeming beehive of activity, where each group managed to retain its identity and its ancient ways, and yet could mingle with the others in genuine friendship.

If they had expected El Dorado, they soon learned it was necessary to stop over to pick up the gold. But — like their predecessors — they believed firmly in God, and knew God helped you only if you helped yourself. They knew nothing of government handouts, so they rolled up their sleeves and took what work was available.

AND THEY HAD PRIDE. The first thing an immigrant did when he found a job was to enroll in some mutual association to which he paid weekly dues of about a quarter. This was to insure him a decent funeral — for it was shameful to be buried in Potter's Field.

Recalling that, I'm not even sure we're getting the kind of native-born Americans we used to, either. Not when I hear the New Left.

Yes, those immigrants knew hardship and poverty — but didn't everybody? Wasn't America a nation of immigrants who had overcome barriers? And however little they had to start, it was still better than they had known before, for here they could worship as they chose. And here their children would have it even better.

So they devoutly believed. And out of their faith, their hope and their determination they made the American Dream come true. According to the permutations of our loudest breast-beaters, the progeny of those East Siders should all be living on Skid Row, sustained only by the weekly dole. Instead you find them prominent in the business world, in the arts and sciences, the professions and the government itself.

NOR AM I THINKING of just a few famed East Siders like Al Smith, Irving Berlin, Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante and David Sarnoff. I'm thinking of millions not so well known, perhaps, who sprang from the same background and are part of the substantial citizenry of the Empire City today.

So to those immigrants the inscription on the Statue of Liberty was not a campaign promise, but an affirmatiion of the truth they had seen with their own eyes, as their sons and daughters entered the mainstream of America.

Make no mistake, they were proud they had left to become Americans. "Portal" reproduces a song cover that I know will appeal to Pat O'Brien, who likes to sing some verses about Notre Dame's fighting Irish, all of whom have names that definitely did not originate in Eire.

Get a load of this, Pat: In 1911, the Hebrew Publishing Co. of New York published a song entitled, "Long Live the Land of the Free," with lyrics by S. Smulowitz and music by J. M. Rumshisky.

I don't think they played for Knute Rockne, Pat, but I think you'd be glad to include them on your all-American squad.

And they were not referring, be it understood, to the alleged history book now current in many of our schools.

RACING CARS is more than a part-time hobby with Del Behrend. She is at her home on Mt. Tamalpais with the Formula V Volkswagen which she and her husband Dwight built into a racing car. A graduate of Ohio State University, Del is research director and editorial officer in the Area Development Department of the Bank of America's San Francisco head office.

'WE RACE CARS'

And She Wins In Men's Class

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Del Behrend holds an executive position that a young man might well envy and races cars in the men's class with her husband Dwight, but no one could say she is not feminine.

She is probably a prime example of the emerging modern young woman described in a current magazine article as "Self emancipated, unabashedly sexy, charmingly individualistic and a joy to the men in her life."

The attractive young brunette, who is a 1960 graduate of Ohio State University, is research director and editorial officer in the Area Development of the Bank of America's San Francisco head office, where she directs and coordinates a number of small business and community projects.

She is also responsible for the bank periodical, "The Small Business Reporter," which provides information about various small business topics for the benefit of business consultants, managers and educators as well as bankers.

WITH HER husband, an inventory control analyst for the Reynolds C. Johnson Company in Burlingame, also an Ohio State graduate, she lives on a secluded wooded slope on Mt. Tamalpais off Panoramic Highway. There they keep the three cars that Del says, together with all the other expenses connected with racing, can take as much as half of their annual income.

"Some people raise kids," she laughs. "We race cars." Not that she has anything against having a family, but that can wait. Del's background and philosophy explain why she has been able to make it in the so-called man's world.

"Some men resent women invading the male world," she says, "but I have found that you are accepted when you prove yourself. I've met no real prejudice and have had no trouble in advancing because of being a woman. If my ideas aren't accepted, it has nothing to do with this. They just probably aren't good enough.

"Young women today don't think of their brains as having sex. The biggest hangup they have is self confidence. They are a little bit uncertain about how the male perceives their role. A woman who tends to be superfeminine is basically insecure in her femininity. She doesn't know what maleness and femaleness are," she says.

DEL IS ALSO well developed in the so-called feminine role, for as a young girl she learned to cook and sew — even though the mechanical part of this skill was so fascinating that at the age of seven she repaired the sewing machine when it broke down while she was making doll clothes. And in high school she took a professional modeling course just out of curiosity. She also wrote poetry and took some courses in art at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in Cleveland, her native city. Painting is still one of her hobbies. After winning on graduation from high school a scholarship in engineering from the Huntington Foundation she began her higher education in the engineering department of Ohio State as one of five girls in a class of 700 men. Believing she might be handicapped in this field as a woman, she switched to liberal arts — her only concession to limitations be cause of sex.

"The important thing is," she noted, "I have always thought of myself first as a person. My family never bothered to tell me because I was a little girl that I was any less human and intelligent. I could do whatever I was interested in. I had two older brothers and there were mostly boys in the neighborhood — so I grew up as a tomboy. That can be tough when you're in your teens," she confessed.

Though she majored in political science, Del thought she might want to be an attorney but got married in her senior year and dropped that idea. She had always loved to work and had had a natural flair for business even since she made a financial success of running a Kool Aid stand as a child.

Her first job after graduating from college was doing marketing research in Columbus, Ohio, and when she left at the age of 23, was supervisor of consumer research and manager of two offices.

Her husband entered military service, she returned to Cleveland, where she was editorial assistant to the director of economic research in the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. Here she designed one of the first IBM computerized mailing systems.

Since 1964 Del has been with the Bank of America. Besides editing the bank's "The Small Business Reporter" she works closely with branch managers of 939 branches in 400 communities in the state, providing an advisory service to small businesses and professional people as well as on community development problems, including beautification programs. She also lectures at colleges and universities and clubs and last year conducted two seminars on executive management development for the woman manager for the University of California.

Meanwhile she is continuing her own education largely by taking various kinds of courses in business and psychology. "There has never been a year since I graduated that I haven't been in school," she says.

How she manages all this plus the racing is something of a mystery, for the racing is no part-time hobby.

She and her husband average 35,000 miles of driving per year in their three cars — a Porsche, a Formula V Volkswagen, which they built into a racing car themselves, and a Volkswagen camper.

"IT TAKES YEARS to achieve competence in racing," she maintains. "I got into it when I met my husband and have nine or ten years' experience in club racing. We started the Ohio State University Sports Car Club, one of the first university racing clubs, and we have belonged to 15 clubs since them.

"But I'm still a novice or student going to driving school in order to get my license to participate in sanctional racing. This is the big stuff where you have a chance to win prize money in road races like those at Laguna Seca and Riverside." Del explained the difference between club and canctioned racing.

"Club races you start driving in rallies for time and distance records without penalties. Next you enter gymkhanas, where you drive relatively slowly around obstacles. Then you go on to hill climbs and speed trials.

"My speed record in the Volkswagen Formula car is about 102 miles an hour, but the fastest I have driven was 130 miles an hour in a Mercedes 300 SL Gullwing.

"I've won several firsts and a lot of seconds and thirds in the men's class.

"In order to participate in the sanctioned races you have to meet the Sports Car Club of America requirements at a drivers' training school to get your license. The competition in this kind of racing is between the man and his car. The spectators provide the money to put on the races.

"THE NEXT STEP is to apply for a regional license and finally for a national license."

Marin Women

ON THE AGENDA

Public And Private Television To Be Described By Wanda Ramey

"The Two Faces of Television — Public and Private" will be the subject of Wanda Ramey, West Coast correspondent for the Public Broadcast Laboratory (PBL), when she speaks to the Marin Forum of Jan. 26. The public luncheon and talk will be held at Alexander Hall Lounge, San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, at noon.

A Mill Valleyan, Wanda Ramey is well known to Bay Area television viewers for her former Noon News program on KPIX, has won awards from the Associated Press, Freedoms Foundation and the San Francisco Examiner, and was chosen outstanding feminine television personality by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

WANDA RAMEY

Now pioneering with the new national PBL, which for two hours each Sunday gives in-depth programming to national happenings, Wanda Ramey is associated with educational television station KQED and has a new weekly interview show on Channel 9.

Program chairman for the Marin Forum program is Mrs. Emily White of San Rafael, and reservations chairmen are Mrs. Arthur L. Sell of Anselmo and Barbara J. Hosmer of Greenbrae.

BISHOP WILLIAM J. McDONALD, auxiliary bishop of San Francisco, will speak at the Marin Deanery Council, Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. in St. Anselm's auditorium, San Anselmo. Bishop McDonald is former president of Catholic University in Washington D. C. Val King, Monitor columnist, will also speak.

MRS. WINSTON A. JONES of Tiburon is ticket chairman in Marin for the Ikebana Spring Fower Show, "East Meets West," to be held on March 29, 30, 31, at the Hall of Flowers in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

FAMILY SERVICE League shop managers Mrs. Lloyd Bergstrom and Mrs. William Gannon will report on the shop's past six months at the league meeting tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. David Vail in Mill Valley. The shop netted $9,000 for the half-year period. An $8,000 check will be given to the Family Service Agency of Marin. Luncheon and bridge will follow the meeting.

THE VENERABLE John J. Weaver, archdeacon of California, will address the Episcopal Churchwomen at the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley, tomorrow at 10:30 a.m., following installation of officers.

He will speak on "Renewal in the Church."

Director of metropolitan planning for the Diocese of California, Canon Weaver came to San Francisco from Detroit, where from 1947 to 1964 he was dean of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul and the founder of the Urban Commission of the Detroit Council of Churches.

"VENEREAL DISEASE in the Teen-ager" will be discussed by Dr. Patricia Hallinan, assistant public health officer for Marin County Health Dept., at 8 p.m. Jan. 30 at the Del Mar School auditorium Tiburon.

The talk will follow two films, "Boy to Man" and "A Quarter Million Tenn-agers," to be shown by Mrs. Katherine De Brecht, school nurse, at 7:30 p.m. The program, sponsored by the Reed District Parent Teachers Club, is the third in the public family life lecture series.

"REJUVENATE IN '68" is the title for the current six weeks course offered to senior citizens by the Senior Coordinating Council and the Community Education Department of College of Marin. Held at 10 a.m. Wednesdays, it covers such topics as nutrition, dress and exercise. Tomorrow is guest day, stressing appreciation of and roles in community and government. Hobbies and volunteer work will be Ed Ryken's topic Jan. 24. How to dress attractively on a limited budget and hair care will be the subject Jan. 31, with beauty and positive thinking the topic on Feb. 7.

THE ROMAN LOOK

Valentino Goes Pale Or Dark For Spring

By SHEILA WALSH

ROME (UPI)-Designer Valentino banned color and palazzo pajamas in his spring-summer high fashion collection Sunday night.

Jacqueline Kennedy's favorite Roman designer concentrated on white in the preview of his collection for international store buyers and press. What was not white could be beige, black or navy—adding up to the dictum "no color."

The flowing evening pajamas that were once a Valentino trademark disappeared in this collection to be replaced by floor length "at home" dresses in white or beige.

Valentino's silhouette was heavily influenced by the easy shape of a sweater—the V necked tennis sweater, the Carigan and the turtleneck.

VALENTINO OPENED his show with a series of short white coats worn with matching hats shaped like inflated berets. Shoes and stockings were white and little gold V's trimmed coat pockets. The matching dresses were slim, V-necked and belted in gold.

There were few prints in the collection. When Valentino used them they were either subtle prints of leaves or knotted rope patterns.

Real oak leaves, bits of pine cone and pieces of polished wood added something new to embroideries in the Valentino collection. He also used wood alternating with gold chain for his belts.

COATS OFTEN HAD a mildly military air with braid, frogging and hints at epaulettes.

Needlework and lace starred for evening. A champagne cocktail dress had a swirling pleated silk skirt and a lace and crepe long-sleeved top cut like a sweater.

The same needlework was used for the pale dinner suits of Valentino's men's collection. The turtleneck collar was in but he varied it with high stocks with loosely tied scarves or lace ruffs.

VALENTINO CELEBRATED with a party after the show for socialites and fashion experts. The invitations almost read as though he had planned a farewell party for evening pajamas.

Ladies were asked to wear "pajamas or short dress."

But some of them had obviously sniffed out which way the fashion wind was blowing at Valentino's salon and wore long gowns. Pajamas were scarce.

Princess Luciana Pignatelli, a socialite and a designer herself, wore a full length beaded gown in grey and tawny orange from Valentino's winter collection.

THE GENTLEMEN WERE asked to wear "Mao" coats, turtlenecks or dark suits. There was no mention of more conventional wear but few brave men sported black tie.

From the look of Valentino's party, there should not be a white wool turtleneck sweater left in the Eternal City after the rush on them started by the designer's invitation.

Valentino himself wore a midnight blue velvet suit and a silk Russian peasant shirt with a touch of embroidery at the collar.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Going Collective Is The Cure For Steadies Who Like Others

DEAR HELEN:

The girl I go with is kind of two-timing me, but she claims that it is more like one-and-one-half-timing. In short, she says she likes me but kind of half likes another boy.

What should I do? — TWO-TIMED

DEAR T.:

Likewise!

In short, go collective, which means you have a No. 1 choice, but you don't rule out numbers 2, 3 and 4, and your girl has the same privilege, without jealousy hang-ups.

Going collective was suggested by a boy several months ago. According to my mail, it's catching on. Too bad he didn't send his name. He might have gone down in history as the guy who named the successor to going steady. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I agree wholeheartedly with the new trend away from going steady. After five fun-filled months of being a steady, my boy friend and I decided to date others. It was really his idea and it hurt me very much for a few days. Then I realized how much fun it would be to get out and date other boys.

My b.f. and I are still good friends, and we still date each other. I used to think going steady was the best thing that could happen to a girl, but now I know better. It's much more fun to be — GOING COLLECTIVE

DEAR HELEN:

I did some good, hard thinking the other day. This is what I thought:

Millions are starving. How can I be proud of myself when I turn up my nose at good food and waste it?

Millions are dressed in rags barely covering their bodies. How can I be proud of myself when my closet is full of clothes and I "never have anything to wear?"

Millions are living in hovels, sometimes with four or five other families. How can I be proud of myself when I have a warm home and a private bedroom and am hardly ever to be found there?

Millions have no parents or anyone to love and care for them. How can I be proud of me when I have a father and mother and never tell them I love them or show any appreciation?

How can I be proud of me when I am oblivious to the cries for help? To the suffering on the battlefields? To the hunger-pains of little children? Even to the misery of the shy outcast who walks down the hall, all alone?

I can't. Not until I forget myself and let others come into my heart. — MARY

DEAR HELEN:

I am 18 and have been going with this girl for about a year. All the while, I've never tried anything out of the way, but the other night I sort of lost control, and so did she. We didn't go all the way, but I'm ashamed of myself for letting necking turn into petting.

Now she treats me like a stranger. She says she still loves me but if I even put my arm around her waist, she pushes me away. I've got just as strong morals as she has, and now that I know it can happen, I know it won't happen again. What is she afraid of? — HURT

DEAR HURT:

Your girl is afraid of her emotions, and feels guilty about them. She may also believe you think her "cheap."

A good, thorough discussion about morals, temptations, resistance, respect and love might make you a safe twosome again.

Neither of you should be ashamed of what happened once. But if it happens again, I'll predict an early break-up. You'd both be going against your principles, and you'd soon be hating each other. — H.

BABETTE GILBERT

Babette Gilbert To Be Bride Of Erik Andersson

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Gilbert of Greenbrae announced the engagement of their daughter, Babette Kathryn, to Erik Gunnar Andersson at a dinner party in Gothenburg, Sweden.

The future bride, who is a training stewardess for Pacific Air Lines, was graduated from Redwood High School and attended City College of San Francisco. She is the sister of Patricia, Jeanette and Valerie Gilbert.

Erik is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Anderson of Gothenburg and the brother of Christina Anderson. He was graduated from Gothenburg Business College and is employed by Scandinavian Air Lines.

Foundation Names Mrs. Wallace Scott

Mrs. Wallace Scott was installed new president of the Marin Charitable Foundation at a luncheon meeting given by retiring president Mrs. Samuel Archibald yesterday at her home in Ross.

Other officers are Mesdames Kent Seymour, first vice president; Leon C. Smith, second vice president; William Haney, recording secretary; Jordan Martinelli, corresponding secretary and Dorothy Wilkins, treasurer.

Members-at-large are Mesdames Fred Herrington, Harry Johnson III, Edgar Lindner, John Manwaring and William Milliken.

The new prsident became the first woman elected to the Belvedere City Council taking office in 1958. She served four years on the Belvedere Planning Commission and was City Fire Commissioner. She is past president and longtime board member of Sunny Hills and past president and board member of the Girl Scout Council of Marin. She has also been active in the Marin Art and Garden Center and founded the Antiques Shop at the Center. She is also one of the founding members of St. Stephens Guild in Belvedere and is a past president of the Century Club of California.

NEW EXECUTIVE director of the Golden Gate Council of Camp Fire Girls is Mrs. Josie-Lee Kuhlman of Pacifica. She replaces Jane Baker who has been appointed regional director of Camp Fire Girls for Region VI, covering the Pacific Northwest.

To Cook Eggs

Greenish discolorations in hard-cooked or scrambled eggs occur when the iron in the yolk and white combine to form iron-sulfide. The defect is not harmful. But to avoid, cook eggs at moderate temperatures. Hard-cooked eggs should be simmered starting with cold water. Stirring scrambled eggs frequently to distribute heat helps eliminate the discolor.

Liebes NORTHGATE

THERAPEUTIC

Gernreich Fashions Taking Women Back To The Fig Leaf

By GAY PAULEY

Well, Rudi Gernreich's "naked" fashions for spring head her in that general direction. But the Los Angeles-based designer, an undisputed leader of the fashion avant garde, defends his daring clothes with some convincing arguments.

First, he defines the avant garde—"It challenges the established order, but it also arises out of the established order . . . the old guard thinks that women should be dressed to the teeth. The avant garde thinks they should be naked. That's all."

GERNREICH, whose fashion leadership landed him the cover story in a national news magazine recently, then delved into matters of modesty.

"There's natural modesty and no one can challenge that," he said. "Then there's unnatural modesty and that's gone! Sex appeal is one thing; body appeal is another.

"Thanks to the avant garde we are beginning to make the distinction . . . fashion can be therapeutic. It can teach people what bodies are really all about. When you mix sex appeal and body appeal, then that's vulgar."

Having said his say on the old and new guards, Gernreich, who shocked the world several seasons ago with the topless bathing suit, then went ahead in his new fashion collections to demonstrate what he believes about body appeal.

The clothes are just loaded with see-through vinyls, bikini bottoms under conventional, but very short dresses, and with fabric cutouts that leave little to the imagination.

Myra Scott Bride Of Donald Hanson

Myra J. Scott and Donald W. Hanson were united in marriage at the Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato on Saturday.

Myra, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Scott of Novato, wore an ivory colored knit suit. Her attendant, Patricia J. Yates of San Francisco, wore a pink dress.

Robert Sciaroni of Kent Woodlands was best man and ushers were Paul Lacoste of San Rafael and Renato Sottile of Mill Valley.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin, where she is employed. She is the sister of Mrs. A. W. Kinsey of Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Nathe of San Rafael are the bridegroom's parents. He is the brother of Margaret and Tony Nathe of San Rafael. He attended Belarmine Preparatory School, College of Marin and the University of Idaho. He is employed with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company in San Francisco.

Sandra June Dolph Bride In Episcopal Church Rite

MRS. EDWIN McLAURY

Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito was the setting of the wedding at 3 p.m., Jan. 6 of Sandra June Dolph and Edwin Payne McLaury. Sandra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Dolph of San Francisco.

Mrs. James Aggson of Greeley, Colo., was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Sandra's sister Mrs. Michael D. Osborne of Corte Madera, Marylou McCollum of Denver and Ann Kerr of Aptos.

Best man was Doug McLaury, Ed's brother, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and ushers were John DiCaro of Corte Madera, Robert Wilhelm of Portland, Ore., and David Maples of Torrance. Six Naval officers from Alameda formed a sword arch for the couple as they left the church.

After a reception at the Alta Mira Hotel, the couple left for a wedding trip to Las Vegas. They will live in Japan, where Lt. McLaury is stationed.

Sandra is a graduate of Watsonville High School and attened San Francisco State College. She was a stewardess for World Airways before her marriage.

Ed is a graduate of Servern Preparatory School and the University of Colorado, where he joined Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Mrs. Orrin Gray Is Chosen As Guild's New President

Mrs. Orrin Gray of Larkspur is the new president of the Larkspur Corte Madera Guild of Sunny Hills, organized in 1950.

Mrs. Gray has been a member of the Altar Guild of Holy Innocents Church in Corte Madera for the past 15 years and has served as both president and secretary of the Episcopal Church women.

A Marin resident for 21 years, her service to youth groups has included Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. She has been active also in Parent-Teacher Association work at the Larkspur Corte Madera School and at Redwood High School as well as the 14th District P-TA where she served as citizens chairman.

Hazel Gray is the mother of four children. Mrs. T. L. Kramer of Hayward, Warren, a student at San Francisco State; Sandra, a secretary at the Hall of Justice in San Francisco, and Kathryn, a student at Chico State College. Mr. Gray, a former mayor of Larkspur, is plant manager of the graphic arts division of Diamond National Corporation in San Francisco. The Gray family enjoys camping trips in the summer and snow trips to Kingvale in the winter.

Board members who will serve with Mrs. Gray are Mesdames Robert Bowen, vice president; William Costello, recording secretary; David Little, corresponding secretary; M. K. Taylor, treasurer, and Cecil Leonard, Bargain Box chairman.

Northgate Senior Unit Wins Preliminary Nod

The Marin County Housing Authority last night gave preliminary approval to the "turnkey" project for 40 units of senior citizen housing in Northgate. The housing is to be built jointly by realtor Paul O'Pizzi and the R. H. Harris Construction Co.

The redevelopment agency took only one action — authorizing executive director Donald O. Stutsman to get appraisals on land for a proposed 107 units of moderate-income family apartments on Donahue Street in Marin City.

As the housing authority, the board heard a request by Gregory Baines, manager of a recently-opened clothing and record store in Marin City for repainting and reroofing of the building and new blacktop for the parking lot.

Authority officials agreed to paint the building and leak-proof the roof, and ordered a study of the paving request. The store is run by the Black Youth of Marin City.

The board moved to seek concurrence from the City of San Rafael for a subsidized leased housing program there for low-income tenants. The housing authority would rent housing, guarantee the owner rental for a set period, and pay rent supplements. Of 1,160 potential low-income tenants in the county, 420 live in San Rafael, the board was told.

The Marin County Housing Authority also:

MOTEL — Heard Stutsman's opinion that the Skylark Motel at 5613 Redwood Highway, Novato, is unsuitable for senior citizen housing. The owner has offered to sell the motel to the authority.

SCHOOL — Authorized Stutsman to negotiate with Reed Union School District for the proposed purchase of acreage at Hilarita to enlarge the Reed School playground.

YOUTH CORPS— Agreed to continue participation in the county Neighborhood Youth Corps program again in 1968, with a total of nine enrollees and a maximum of $500 cost.

West New Chairman Of Hub Planners

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night elected John F. West as new chairman and Allen J. Creighton as vice chairman.

Following a public hearing, the commission unanimously approved a rezoning application by Mrs. Anna Ghezzi, Wallace Myers, and others from central business district to neighborhood apartment district for three lots at 164 and 168 Tunstead Avenue.

The commission said the rezoning is in conformity with adjacent property use.

Application of Thomas Gehres for a three-lot subdivision of property at 340 Laurel Avenue was denied by a 5-2 vote, however Commissioners Creighton west, Kenneth Anderson, Dennis T. Moore and Joseph Gue maintained the property does not meet subdivision requirements. Commissioners Perry and Philip S. Heinecke voted for approval of the application, but with several stipulations.

Teacher Unit Denounces Strike Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A threatened city teachers strike was denounced today by the 2,600-member San Francisco Classroom Teachers Association.

The association's representative council voted last night to urge members against supporting a strike "at this time and to honor their contractural obligations by remaining in their classrooms."

The strike threat was issued by the San Francisco Federation of Teachers Local 61, an affiliate of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

The local has submitted 92 demands for improvement in teacher benefits and schools. One of the demands includes an ultimatum that the San Francisco Board of Education begin negotiations by Friday or face a strike vote Jan. 25.

The association condemned the strike threat on grounds the union's demands are now being negotiated through the school district's negotiating council. The association also accused union leaders with refusing to join the negotiating council.

SFCTA President Victor B. Graff said the real issue of the threatened strike was Local 61's attempt to become sole bargaining agent for the teachers.

Assembly School Bill Due Study

The Marin County Committee on School District Organization will hear a discussion of an Assembly bill on bonded indebtedness tomorrow.

The committee meets at 8 p.m. in the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office in Corte Madera.

Walf Oglesby, field representative of the state's Bureau of School District Organization, and Charles E. McCully, Marin County assistant deputy superintendent of schools, will present the information to the committee on AB 1801, which spells out procedures for the assumption of bonded indebtedness in school district unification elections, McCully said.

Stanford Vigil; South African Sees Daughter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Doctors kept a cautious vigil today for any signs of rejection of Mike Kasperak's new heart at Stanford while South Africa's transplant patient saw the daughter he had never expected to see again.

Condition of the retired Cleveland steelworker has "moderately improved" since Sunday when his gall bladder was removed in an emergency operation. But he remains on the critical list.

STRONG BEAT

Kasperak, 54, began his 10th day with the heart of 43-year-old housewife Virginia Mae White beating strongly in his chest. Doctors said the heart continued to perform well but problems of rejection "still lie ahead."

The gall bladder was taken out in an hour-long operation and the common bile duct drained in order to remove blood and other matter which had hampered the liver function.

'LOOK WONDERFUL'

"He looks wonderful," 20-year-old Jill Blaiberg said after talking to her father at Cape Town for 10 minutes through a germ proof glass panel. "He seems so cheerful and so much better than I expected."

"My husband was so happy to see Jill," Mrs. Blaiberg said. "His face broke into one big delighted smile."

FROM ISRAEL

Jill, 20, flew to Cape Town yesterday from Israel where she was studying Hebrew and working on a Kibbutz. Her mother asked her to fly home after doctors said Blaiberg missed her and her presence might speed his recovery.

Smash-And-Grab Jewelry Theft

A thief threw a piece of heavy pipe through a San Rafael jeweler's window early today and seized display trays holding over $500 in rings, police said.

Lawrence Callan, owner of James L. Callan and Sons at Fourth and B streets, said the trays held between 24 and 28 gold wedding bands.

The broken window was discovered at 6:15 a.m. by William Keaton, who collects change from city parking meters. He called police.

Transfers To Juvenile Hall Extension May Be Delayed

The resignation of a Juvenile Hall counselor may delay moving a dozen teen-agers and staff rom the hall to the Family Rehabilitation Center building.

The move had been planned for Feb. 1, the day after the center is to be shut down on order of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

COURT HEARINGS

Twelve to 14 teen-aged boys and girls in the "pre-placement" category of Juvenile Hall are to be moved to the center building, which will become a Juvenile Hall extension. The pre-placement designation refers to those juveniles who have had court hearings and are awaiting return to their homes, placement in foster homes or an institution.

Chief Probation Officer Walter H. Busher said today the group probably would include only one teen-ager from the defunct rehabilitation center who has not been returned home or sent to another institution.

SOMEONE NEEDED

The move may be delayed for an unknown time, Busher said, because of the resignation of Donald K. Quayle Jr., who was to have supervised the group at the center building. Busher said someone else must be appointed to fill Quayle's post.

Quayle declined to give a reason for his resignation, saying that he wanted to confer with the "administration." Quayle had been employed at juvenile hall for six years.

Busher said he understood that "personal reasons" and Quayle's "feelings about his capacity (job) and the program" caused his resignation.

"GOOD WORKER"

"He was a very good worker — I'm sorry to see him leave," Busher said.

The Marin County Grand Jury is investigating Juvenile Hall, following resignation of a counselor last spring. The counselor, Francis M. Griffin, charged laxity of discipline at the hall caused by supervisory and administration failure to back those who worked directly with juveniles.

Reagan Poverty Veto Is Likely

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If Gov. Ronald Reagan carries out an expected veto of a federally funded legal aid to the poor program, Sargent Shriver will override him, a government official says.

Laurence P. Horan, western director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, said yesterday at a news conference that Shriver, OEO director, would oppose any move to eliminate the California Rural Legal Assistance program.

The CRLA provides lawyers for the poor in rural areas. Reagan has threatened to do away with the program but Shriver could override a veto.

Prison Term To Student Robber

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 25-year prison sentence has been ordered for a University of California criminology student convicted of bank robbery.

Charles L. Klaus, 33, robbed the Crocker Citizens National Bank in Napa of $10,500 last Nov. 20 and was captured following a gun battle with a sheriff's deputy.

Klaus re-enrolled at Berkeley last semester after serving a term in San Quentin for robbery of the Security National Bank in Los Angeles.

Millay's Poetry Next At Center

Readings of Edna St. Vincent Millay's poetry with background harp music will be the next offering of the Mill Valley Center of the Performing Arts.

Norma Jean Wanvig of Sausalito, John McDill of Mill Valley and Audrey Hamilton and Peggy Ray of San Francisco will interprete the poet's works.

Mill Valley harpist Joel Andrews will provide music for the performance at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the clubhouse of the Mill Valley Golf Course at 280 Buena Vista Avenue.

A 10 per cent increase on tobacco and alcohol taxes is proposed in Canada.

Plea Of Innocent To Morals Charge

Julio Sanchez Garcia, 31, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court yesterday to lewd and lascivious behavior with a 13-year-old girl and indecent exposure.

Garcia, of 136 Park Street, San Rafael, is to appear in court Monday for setting of a trial date. He is charged with the offenses Aug. 29 in San Anselmo.

WAITING FOR DINNER

Gulls and pelicans cluster on the remains of docks off the Sausalito waterfront and push for position on pilings as they rest from dinner dives: the herring is running in San Francsco Bay. Foul weather doesn't deter the birds, but human herring hunters are awaiting clearer weather to scoop buckets full of fish from the water.

Mill Valley Assured On Flood Plan

By ALAN JONES

"We do not intend to spend federal funds developing a design you won't accept."

With that assurance from the Army Corps of Engineers, the Mill Valley City Council last tion asking Congress to night pasted together a resolu- authorize the flood control project on Arroyo Corte Madera del Presidio.

The resolution had more than a dozen authors as the council tinkered with phrasing to emphasize that the city wants the project, but not the "concrete ditch" design which the Army proposed as the most economical solution.

'LOCAL VETO'

Lt Col. Harry McK. Roper, deputy district engineer for the Army, assured the council nothing would be forced down their throats. "Your local veto power is absolute as far as we're concerned," Roper said.

Roper said the Corps in planning a project must work out the most economical design "as a standard against which others must be measured," but that does not mean that only that design can be built. The design finally approved and built must, however, have a favorable cost-benefit ratio — that is, prevent more flood damage than it costs to build.

UNDERGROUND PLAN

At present, Roper said, only one of several alternative designs proposed approaches a favorable ratio: the plan by City Engineer Stanley M. Bala and Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon for an underground concrete diversion channel under Miller Avenue for most of the length of the project, leaving most of the creek bed in its natural state.

Theat plan's cost ratio will improve with time because it requires less land acquisition, Roper said. Today it would cost $2 million more in construction, but $1 million of that would be saved in land costs. As land prices rise the diversion channel will become more competitive in cost, he said.

Roper said the district report to the Army's chief of engineers indicates the Bala-Bragdon plan is worth "further consideration" in advanced planning and design studies for the project.

TIDAL ISSUE

Under questioning, Roper said the Corps plan is designed to contain runoff flooding, not the tidal flooding which occurs near the creek mouth. Several persons in the packed audience argued for protection against tidal incursion, which they siad is the major flood danger.

Roper said the tidal lagoon plan offered by William Hamilton, in which a 30-acre lake would take in water to prevent flooding, would handle only tidal flooding, and not upstream overflows. The lagoon plan would not be economically feasible if included with an upstream flood control plan, Roper said. He estimated pumps alone would cost $1.5 million.

The upstream problem is that creek capacity is 900 cubic feet of water per second, while the highest recorded flow was 1,500 feet per second in the 1955 flood. The corps plan is to protect against a "standard project flood" of 3,700 feet per second. That rate is based on peak rainfall in a 1955 storm over the Santa Cruz Mountains, projected onto the Mill Valley watershed and runoff pattern.

In its cover-all-bases resolution, the council declared the city is anxious for flood control but "very sensitive to preserving the natural character of its creeks," and asked:

1. That "maximum attention be given to all alternatives" which protect the esthetic character of the Arroyo.

2. That every effort be made to coordinate development with the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

3. That every consideration be given to provide "Esthetic enhancement preservation of the quality of the environment."

Roper said the Corps is consulting with the housing department to coordinate planning and design. He said HUD may be able to pay a large share of developments included for esthetic reasons.

It would take six to eight years at a minimum to build the project, Roper said. If Congress authorizes the project this year, planning money would not be voted until 1969 or 1970, and another four to six years would be needed to design and build the project. It will probably take even longer, Roper said, pointing at a district backlog of $370 million in authorized but unfunded projects.

VETO DEADLINE

The city retains a veto over the project, and its design, up to the time a construction contract is awarded, Roper said.

The "concrete ditch" basic plan of the Corps would enlarge the creek's earth channel at the mouth, from the Northwest Pacific Railroad bridge to Camino Alto, or 1,900 feet. Contangular concrete channel would be built from Camino Alto to Gardner Street, 7,800 feet. Concrete channels would be built on 1,700 feet of Reed Creek, 1,400 feet of Warner Creek and 750 feet of Old Mill Creek.

The council's resolution will be sent on to Washington, where the Army is holding hearings Monday on the project plan.

Supervisors Give Marin Hospital District Mental Health Controls

Marin County supervisors decided last night to place administration of county mental health services under the direction of Marin General Hospital District despite opposition to the plan from local psychiatrists and mental health groups.

A proposal made by a three-man committee to the supervisors and hospital directors was thrashed out at a joint meeting of the two boards at the Civic Center.

BASIC SERVICES

Under the proposal, which was adopted "in principle" by supervisors with details to be worked out later, five basic mental health services will be administered by the hospital district.

Hospital directors agreed unanimously to support the proposal but their chairman, Mrs. Marion C. Ibach, said a formal acceptance would have to be made at their meeting next Tuesday.

Included under the new administrative set-up will be in-patient, out-patient, partial hospitalization, education and emergency care. At present, Marin General Hospital handles in-patient and day care and the Community Mental Health Services under Dr. Clyde G. Miller handles out-patient care and information, consultation and emergencies.

Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen of the Board of Supervisors and Mrs. Ibach both indicated that the new proposal should be adopted so that details may be worked out before the new Mental Health Center adjacent to the hospital is open this fall.

PILOT PROGRAM

At present a pilot program for mentally ill patients is housed in the hospital.

The committee recommending the new plan was composed of Dr. J. M. Stubblebine, Mill Valley psychiatrist; Ray K. Bolinger, administrator of Marin General, and Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella.

They stressed that patients should get "continuity of care" and not be blocked by artificial administrative barriers.

Opposition to the proposal was voiced by a number of psychiatrists, including Dr. Thomas P. Lowry, representing Marin Psychiatric Society, who said the hospital was entering "unknown areas" under the plan.

ASKS SLOW UP

Dr. Leon Wanerman, deputy director for Community Mental Health Services, said the new plan would bring "serious disruption of the current program for patients" and recommended that changes be made gradually.

Also expressing reservations about the proposal were representatives of the Mental Health Advisory Board and Marin Association for Mental Health, as well as an ad hoc committee representing 17 Marin agencies concerned with mental retardation.

Supervisor Peter H. Behr expressed doubt that the new proposal could work if the "psychiatric community is opposed to it." He was answered by Dr. George R. Caesar, chief of the psychiatric section at Marin General Hospital, who said that his experience with the hospital administration has been good.

Supervisors Kettenhofen, Behr and John F. McInnis then voted for the proposal, asking that the various mental health groups in the county assist with working out details.

Peace Referendum Fails; Petitions Not Submitted

A committee seeking a county-wide vote on the Vietnam War apparently has failed in its try to get a peace initiative on Marin's primary ballot.

The Vietnam Initiative Committee, to qualify the initiative for the June election, would have had to gather the signatures of 7,065 registered voters, said the assistant county clerk for elections, John F. Musser Jr. The deadline to submit the signatures to his office was on Thursday, but none was submitted, he said.

If the committee wants to try to get the initiative on the November ballot, it will have to start all over again regardless of how many signatures it already collected, said Musser. The chairman of the committee, Mrs. Monte G. Steadman of Corte Madera, said in November that more than 2,000 signatures had been collected.

She could not be reached today for comment on the apparent failure of the committee's drive.

The Thursday deadline automatically resulted from the state election code's requirement that signatures be submitted within six months after a notice of intent to circulate a petition is published, Musser explained. The committee's notice appeared in the Independent-Journal on July 12. The required number of signatures represents 10 per cent of the number of voters in the last gubernatorial election.

It is possible that the committee could start all over and still qualify for the June ballot, Musser said, "but there's not much of a chance." Signatures cannot be collected until 21 days after publication of a notice of intent to circulate a petition, and signatures have to be turned in to his office at least 60 days before the June 4 primary, he said.

Also, to allow for errors by persons signing petitions, the committee should collect about 9,000 signatures, Musser added.

The committee's initiative states: "It is the policy of the people of the County of Marin that there be an immediate ceasefire and negotiations with all parties for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam so that the Vietnamese people can settle their own problems."

A similar proposition was defeated Nov. 7 by San Francisco voters. That proposition called for "immediate ceasefire and withdrawal."

Mill Valley City Workers Get Pay Hike

Acting without dissent, the Mill Valley City Council last night approved mid-year raises for city employees which will boost the city payroll by $17,500 for the next six months.

The council approved a 2.5 per cent cost of living raise across the board, with an additional 2.5 per cent raise for 63 employees and an additional 5 per cent for 11 employees.

The raises will bring the city back to the median among the group of cities used for salary comparison, City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer said. Balmer said cost of living has gone up 3.1 per cent in the past year and is expected to rise 3.3 per cent this year.

While salaries will rise $17,500, the city will also have to pay another $2,000 in retirement costs and $100 in insurance premiums.

SMOKERS TO PAY

Balmer said the cost will be balanced by the new cigarette tax which he estimated will bring in $17,500 this fiscal year.

Speaking just after the council had petitioned Congress for flood control funds, planning consultant Thomas Cooke outlined a report on the Mill Valley development plan which calls for flood control with a design "other than that of the Corps of Engineers."

The council took no action. The report has been under planning commission study for several weeks.

Overriding the planning commission, the council last night approved commerical zoning for a service station lot at the northwest corner of Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue to allow building a new station. The commission had unanimously recommended keeping the area in the professional-administrative office district to encourage "phasing out" the gas station.

COMMISSIONERS SET

Mayor Albert E. White reappointed five city commissioners and named one new commissioner. Dartmond Cherk was named to the architectural advisory commission. Reappointed were Edward J. Boessenecker to the planning commission, James Rutledge and Dwight B. Bishop to the parks and recreation commission, and Gary Philp and Mrs. Mathew Dillingham to the art commission.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

ELECTION — Set polling hours of 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., for the April 9 city election and authorized publishing election notices. Terms of Mayor White, and Councilmen George E. Wickham and Michael Wornum will expire this year.

MAPPING — Authorized $15,000 from sewer bond funds for aerial mapping.

San Anselman Is Found Dead

Mrs. Delores Manske Christensen, 43, whose husband, Anders J. Christensen, is in Marin General Hospital, was found dead yesterday at the family home, 41 Salinas Avenue, San Anselmo.

Deputy Coroner Keith Craig said she apparently had taken an overdose of barbiturates. San Anselmo police said Jeff Christensen, their 10-year-old son, found his mother in bed about 9:30 a.m. Several boxes of pills were found at her bedside, officers said, and she left a note saying she was despondent over the failing health of her husband, a real estate agent.

Also surviving is a daughter, Lauren, 13. Chapel of the Hills Mortuary in San Anselmo is in charge of arrangements.

Trio Is Injured In Collision On Rain Slick 101

Three persons were injured yesterday as two cars tangled on southbound Highway 101, south of the Greenbrae overpass.

A car driven by Ronald B. Peterson, 37, of 259 Cecelia Way, Tiburon, stopped in the middle lane.

Wesley Major Jr., 35, an administrative specialist at Hamilton Air Force Base, in an effort to avoid the pedestrian, made a quick lane change with his car which hit the rear of Peterson's stopped car at 8:15 p.m., according to the patrol.

Peterson and his wife, Renee, 38, were both treated at Marin General Hospital for neck sprains. Major told patrolmen he would see his own doctor.

Depressed Father Still Critical

Raymond Szostak, 46, father of nine children, who drove his family car into Nicasio Lake in an apparent suicide attempt, remained in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital today.

He suffered stab wounds in the chest, neck and wrist which sheriff's deputies said were self inflicted after the car failed to totally submerge Sunday.

Szostak, of 12 Plaza Demira, Novato, was reportedly depressed on being retired from the Army because of a heart ailment.

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 16, the 16th day of 1968 with 350 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and its last quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1833, the U.S. Civil Service was established.

In 1920, saloons closed their doors as the Volstead Act to enforce prohibition went into effect.

In 1952, Russia ordered all foreign diplomats in Moscow to limit their movements to within 25 miles of the city, allegedly to stop spying in military installations.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

One Way To Defend Accurately Is Show Distribution Right Away

One way to defend accurately is to show the number of cards you hold in a suit led by declarer. If you're not trying to win the trick, you play low to show an odd number of cards; but you play higher than necessary to show an even number of cards in the suit.

HARD CONTRACT

When today's hand was played a few months ago between the women's teams of Great Britain and of Ireland, Mrs. Fritzi Gordon made a difficult contract for the British women by stealing a spade trick.

Mrs. Gordon captured the queen of hearts with the ace to win the first trick and led the jack of spades. East won with the king of spades and returned a trump.

Declarer let this ride to the queen and returned a low spade from dummy. Since West had played the three of spades earlier, showing an odd number of spades, it was clear that South still had a spade.

FIRST SPADE

But East had forgotten the first spade trick and thought that South had led a singleton jack of spades.

When East played the nine of spades on the second round of the suit, Mrs. Gordon stole the trick by winning it with the ten. This not only gave declarer a trick but also told her that East had started with ace-king of spades and the king-queen of hearts. Clearly, West held the ace of diamonds for her raise.

STAGES END PLAY

The only way to win a trick with the king of diamonds was to stage an end play. Mrs. Gordon ruffed a heart in dummy, ruffed a spade in her hand, and drew all of the trumps. Then she led a heart and let the opponents take their two tricks.

East then had to lead a low diamond, and Mrs. Gordon played low from her hand. West had to play the ace of diamonds to beat dummy's jack, after which Mrs. Gordon's king of diamonds was good for the last trick — and the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ — J 10
♥ — A 9 8 5
♦ — K 8
♣ — A K J 6 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

Even though you hold 16 points in high cards, the hand does not qualify for an opening bid of 1-notrumps. Avoid bidding notrumps when you hold two doubletons.

Upholds Long Hair

DOVER, Del. (UPI)—The Delaware Board of Education has ruled that public school officials cannot regulate the dress and appearance of students. The board overruled Delmar High School officials who had barred a 17-year-old youth from classes because of his long hair.

this home at $64,950 is priced almost exactly at the ASSESSOR'S appraisal of $64,152! This is proof of two things. First, it's a BARGAIN asking price and, second, the seller really wants to dispose of the property. And it's a fine big home. Beautiful and separate master suite (and new addition), 2 more bedrooms AND a den, an extra room off the garage. Fireplace opens to living and dining room and both these rooms look out to a charming pool . . . and beyond to a view. . . . And the property has 1½ acres, a long drive, and towering redwoods. We think this may well be the NEXT home sold in KENT WOODLANDS. CALL US TILL 8 P.M. PLEASE

Bert Corona Quits Civil Rights Post

Bert N. Corona, former superintendent of San Rafael School District, has resigned in protest from an advisory committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights.

He said the commission was unable "to become truly involved" in the rights of Spanish-speaking residents of the country.

Corona, president of the Mexican-American Political Association, resigned as a member of the California State Advisory Committee to the commission.

He wrote John A. Hanna, commission chairman: "You have refused or have been unwilling to deal with the whole matter of 'police brutality' against our people and particularly against our youth."

He accused the commission of "continually offering false promises and distant hopes" to divert Mexican-American efforts to organize themselves to fight effectively for solution of their problems.

Stinson Beach's Library Moves, Adds To Hours

The Stinson Beach branch of the Marin County Library will open Thursday afternoon in its new location in the Engle Building, next to the Silver Dollar Cafe, County Librarian Virginia Keating announced today.

Open house, sponsored by the citizens of Stinson Beach, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., Thursday.

New library hours are Monday, 7 to 9 p.m., Tuesday 2 to 4 p.m., Wednesday 7 to 9 p.m., Thursday 2 to 5 p.m., and Friday 3 to 5 p.m., a total of 11 hours per week. Former library hours were only on Mondays and Thursdays, for a total of five hours per week.

Mrs. Barbara Lewis and Mrs. Crisann Gniechwitz will be in charge of the Stinson Beach branch library.

The former library, located in an old hotel building owned by Mrs. Louise Airey, was closed last month because the building was sold.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Ancient Egyptians Knew Heart Had Important Role In Living

VAN DELLEN

Knowledge of cardiology was found in ancient Egyptian writings. Sometime between 3000 and 2500 B.C., scientists knew that the heart was the center of a system of distributing blood and that the pulse was associated with the heart beat.

Additional information about the organ was delayed because there were many misconceptions to disprove and facts to obtain.

ONE OF THE most unusual historical facts about cardiology is that the most common type of heart disease was not discovered until 1912 by the Chicago physician, John B. Herrick. We refer to the ordinary heart attack (coronary thrombosis) which is also the leading cause of death.

We do not know how it escaped detection during the preceding centuries. While coronary thrombosis existed prior to that time, its symptoms were thought to stem from the stomach (acute indigestion) rather than the heart. We have Dr. Herrick to thank for changing our concepts.

THERE ARE many reasons why these attacks have increased one thousandfold in the last 50 years. People are living to an age at which coronary arteries are likely to become arteriosclerotic. In addition, new diagnostic technics enable our physicians to detect mild and atypical forms.

Since Herrick's discovery, the electrocardiogram was invented and many remedies were introduced.

Treatment for those with coronary thrombosis is highly specialized. Many of the victims are now put into coronary care units where the action of the heart is followed with delicate electronic devices.

THE PREVENTION of heart attacks soon will become a reality. It involves the avoidance of high risk factors: High cholesterol intake, tobacco, inadequate sleep, too little exercise, obesity, diabetes, hypertension and sustained stress.

Heredity also enters the picture but there is nothing we can do about this facet of prevention because it is impossible to get a new set of grandparents.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

INFANTILE ECZEMA

Mrs. K. WRITES: I am the distracted mother of a young child with eczema. She is under the care of a physician but I am trying to find out as much as possible about the condition. Can you advise me?

REPLY

The clue may be the word distracted. Our leaflet on infantile eczema covers the subject briefly. It can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

VISION AFTER SURGERY

C. B. writes: Can a person drive a car after a successful cataract operation?

REPLY

Yes, but the decision should come from the eye surgeon, because you neglected to mention the condition of your other eye. Front vision usually is excellent after surgery, but side vision may be slightly impaired.

ELECTRIC SHOCK

Mrs. N. J. writes: A woman in early pregnancy touched an electric light switch with wet hands. A shock went through her entire body. Do you think the baby will be deformed because of this?

REPLY

NEED FOR HORMONES

REPLY

Not all — just those with aggravating hot flashes.

A $500,000 Student Dormitory Is Outlined

Plans for a $500,000 student dormitory complex at Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael were described at the training school's annual meeting yesterday at Sabella's Restaurant at Alto.

Architect Richard Olmsted said this second phase of the school's expansion was expected to begin this summer. The 16-room building will house 32 students.

The first phase of the rebuilding is nearly completed, said William F. Johns, executive director.

Construction of the kennel area began in May and is expected to be finished by late spring. It consists of three training kennels and separate kennels for receiving, breeding and whelping.

Other buildings are the kennel kitchen, trainers' locked room, for puppy testing and the manager's office.

Officers for 1968 are Mrs. Pierpont M. Hamilton of Santa Barbara, president; Mrs. Nion Tucker, honorary president; E. O. Boyer and John L. Bradley, vice presidents; Mrs. Jerry Walker, secretary; Mrs. Joseph M. Fee, assistant secretary; Homer Keaton, treasurer, and Dean Anderson, assistant treasurer.

Catholic Family Agency To Seat Officers Friday

Rev. John J. O'Connor, pastor of St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church, Terra Linda, will offer the Mass at 7 p.m. at the O'Brien home, 575 Thyme Place.

Msgr. James B. Flynn, general director of Catholic charities in San Francisco, will speak at the dinner at Lin-Fa Gardens Restaurant at the Northgate Shopping Center.

Bernard R. Whitehill of San Anselmo will be installed as chairman of the board of the agency; Murray Fox of Tiburon will be community services chairman; Mrs. James C. Hudson of Novato, secretary, and William Roberts Jr. of San Rafael, treasurer.

New board members to be installed are Mrs. Terry Purcell and Mrs. Donald Kreps of Greenbrae, James A. Duckworth and Milton Scott of Novato, Paul Basque of Terra Linda, Jack Hoffman of Tiburon, Alan Shattuck of Terra and Ed Hicks of Marinwood.

Dance To Benefit Western Weekend

To raise funds to help pay off the $400 indebtedness of last year's Western Weekend celebration in Novato, a dinner dance with local entertainment will be held starting at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Moose Lodge, formerly the Hilltop Restaurant off Lamont Avenue.

The entrants to the Junior Miss Pageant will do a dance routine. David Milano will demonstrate square dancing. Rufus Reed will sing folk songs. "The Section Four" will furnish music for dancing.

A no-host cocktail hour will start at 6 p.m. with dinner from 7 to 9 p.m. and dancing to follow the entertainment.

Air Force Cadets Plan Car Washes

The Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets of Novato High School will hold two car washes to raise funds for their field trips and military ball.

The car washes will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday and again on Feb. 3 at Ed's Enco Station on South Novato Boulevard at Center Road and Chris's Enco Station in the Pacheco Plaza on Ignacio Boulevard.

Tax Group Backs Only Street Bonds

Novato's Taxation After Balloting Committee has come out in favor of the city's proposed street bond issue and against its park bond issue.

Both measures will be before Novato voters in a special election next Tuesday.

The TAB committee, in an "open letter to the citizens of Novato" over signatures of Albert Doerig Jr. and George Amaroli, recommended a "yes" vote on Measure A (the street bonds) for the following reasons:

1. "The average annual city expenditure of $200,000 (derived mainly from gasoline taxes) takes care of only the worst street deficiencies.

2. "Improved streets would be a benefit to every member of the community.

1. "After a 30-cent parks and recreation tax was levied in 1966, "the city council arbitrarily" spent 10 cents of the levy for purchase of a civic center site; "there is no assurance that something similar to this will not happen again."

2. After a $100,000 bond issue was voted for a municipal swimming pool, the cost ran to $132,000. "There is no assurance that total park financing will not exceed" the proposed bond issue.

3. "Cost of parks maintenance and operation is an unknown figure and could well exceed the benefit the taxpayer derives," and

4. The proposed parks "would be a duplication of existing or projected state and federal park facilities within the county."

The Taxation After Balloting Committee was formed in 1965 to oppose a 60-cent raise in the Novato tax rate that year which included the 30-cent parks and recreation levy. It started a movement for recall of then-Mayor Robert D. Carrow and Councilmen Lucile Cannon and William Jack Adams, but dropped it. Adams is the only one of the three now on the city council.

The committee had been quiescent for some time until its statement on the bond issues.

Undecided Vote Held Key To Novato Bonds

The undecided voter still holds the key to success or failure of the $8 million streets and parks bond issue, it was reported last night to Novatans for Better Streets and Parks, according to Mrs. Carolyn Crabtree, publicity chairman.

On Sunday an additional 100 homes were polled by six high school students, bringing the total polled to 1,200, she reported.

In the total poll, 56 per cent favored the street bonds; 16 per cent were against them and 28 per cent were undecided, she reported. On the park bonds, 50 per cent were in favor; 20 per cent were against and 30 per cent were undecided, she reported.

COFFEE MEETINGS

Mrs. James McEntee reported that there were 39 more coffee meetings scheduled for the coming week. There were 215 people who attended them last week.

High school government students will baby sit or take people to the polls to vote after school on election day next Tuesday, Mrs. Crabtree said.

Results of the election will be available on election night at the Novato City Hall, she said.

ENDORSING BONDS

Endorsing the bonds are the city council, Novato City Employees Association, Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce, North Marin Council 14th District of the California Congress of Parent and Teacher Inc., Novato Chamber of Commerce directors, Novato Civic Foundation, Sutton School P-TA executive board, Novato Jaycettes, Xi Kappa Psi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, Novato Garden Club and Novato Teachers Association.

School Annex Petition For Tomales Bay

A petition calling for the annexation of the Watson district in Sonoma County to the Tomales Bay School District was presented to the Tomales trustees last night, according to David Raffo, principal.

The petition had 35 signatures, representing 60 per cent of the residents of the Watson district, Raffo said.

After the petition goes to the Sonoma County superintendent of schools, an annexation election will be set up, Raffo said. The five students in the Watson district are now attending the Bodega Bay School, he said.

Educational goals for the district were discussed by 15 parents who attended the meeting, Raffo said. A citizens committee may be set up in the future to study this, Raffo said.

Raffo announced that the district had received $6,100 from the federal government for a remedial reading program. This is the third year that the district has received these funds, he said. It got $7,500 for the program last school year, he said.

The board accepted for study handbooks on community relations and administration, but took no action to adopt them, Raffo said.

Navy Denies Linking Two Skipper Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says Capt. Richard G. Alexander was not transferred from command of the battleship New Jersey to a desk job because he publicly defended another officer stripped of command.

Alexander had already been named to command the Vietnam-bound battle-wagon, now being demothballed, when he complained about the Navy's handling of the case of Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter of San Rafael.

Arnheiter was captain of the radar picket ship Vance serving off Vietnam when he was relieved and reassigned to a desk job in San Francisco following complaints about him from junior officers aboard the Vance. The Navy said he showed poor command qualities.

Alexander complained about the Navy's role to Secretary of the Navy Paul R. Ignatius.

Ignatius, responding to an inquiry by Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, D-N.Y., said yesterday of the Arnheiter-Alexander episode: "While on the surface these administrative actions would appear to be interrelated, in actual fact each action has been separately executed and reviewed."

German Shepherd Show Is Planned

Paul Putnam of Novato will judge the obedience match. Deadline for entry is Jan. 29 and entry forms may be obtained from L. J. Allen, post office box 49, Mill Valley 94941.

Sausalito Radio Tower Gets Permit

A 100-foot radio tower to supplement three existing towers will be erected on a private road (Sundial Road) near the intersection of Alta Avenue, Spencer Avenue and Ridge Road in Sausalito.

Thomas F. Cordill, county zoning administrator, yesterday gave Sundial Broadcasting Co. permission to build the tower, with conditions to be worked out today after Cordill confers with the county counsel Edward Davis of Sausalito, vice president of Sundial Broadcasting, said his firm operates station KDFC. He said the towers can be seen only from the south end also:

The Zoning Administrator also:

California Smog Experts Oppose Federal Takeover

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — California smog experts marshaled more evidence today in their battle to keep the state's air pollution program inviolate from the new federal program launched Jan. 1.

The new federal air quality act directs the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to determine whether California standards are high enough to allow it to remain the only state with its own vehicle smog control program.

That's the prime objective of week-long hearings started here yesterday by S. Smith Griswold, associate director of the National Center for Air Pollution Control. It continued this afternoon.

Witness after witness testified they believed the federal government should not take over the job, and that state rules are more strict.

"We are not out to destroy any industry. We are out to improve the air we breathe," said Louis J. Fuller, air pollution control officer of the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District.

"We have proven that our needs are pressing and that the overpowering burden of filth, exhaust and dirt in the air we breathe can be worse in human discomfort and physical injury than starvation and other forms of human misery."

D. J. Callaghan, chief administrative officer of the San Francisco Bay Area Pollution Control District, challenged the federal concept of control at the automobile factory, not on the highways.

U.S. Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., told the hearing that California had taken great strides in cleaning up air pollution, but that the job was far from complete.

State Social Welfare Director Spencer Williams contended federal standards for auto crank case emissions were far below California standards. He noted that one-tenth of new cars built in the nation are sold in California, creating a greater need for a strict control than elsewhere.

Meanwhile, as a first step in enforcing the new federal laws, the department of Health, Education and Welfare has devided the continental U.S. into eight major air pollution areas, in Washington, D.C.

Seven Marin Servicemen In Exercise

Seven Marin servicemen took part in "Bead Stringer," a 10-day First Fleet training exercise that ended Saturday off the Southern California coast.

The exercise was to prepare the 23 ships and nine air units that participated to train "for conditions prevailing in Southeast Asia," the Navy said.

The seven were Fire Control Technician Seaman William H. Barringer, son of Mrs. Friedericke K. Barringer of 45 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera, aboard the destroyer USS Edson; Fire Control Technician Third Class Thomas R. Kolbe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Kolbe of Redwood Drive, Woodacre, aboard the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser USS Long Beach;

Marine Lance Cpl. Miguel Garcia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel U. Garcia of 35 Madrone Avenue, Woodacre, aboard the guided missile light cruiser USS Oklahoma City; Seaman James N. Kard, son of Gus Kard of 55 Billou Street, San Rafael, aboard the USS Oklahoma City; Data Systems Technician Third Class Dave J. Garbarino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garbarino of 162 Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, aboard the aircraft carrier USS Bennington; Fireman apprentice Daniel D. Corte-Real, son of Camillo D. Corte-Real of 317 Ross Drive, Mill Valley, aboard the USS Bennington, and Commissaryman Seaman Stephen K. Hardwicke, son of Mrs. John D. Hampton of 268 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, aboard the USS Long Beach.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Top Cage Team Obsesses Writer

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Please try to understand why I simply have to write about Lew Alcindor's eye injury today. It's become an obsession with me ever since he got hurt in a UCLA basketball game last weekend. Life is suddenly more difficult. And besides, there's a television angle.

The video angle is that UCLA, the most powerful and fantastically splendid college basketball team ever assembled, will play the country's No. 2 squad, Houston, Saturday in a game that is expected to get a large nationwide pickup on television. (On Channel 2, 6 p.m., Saturday).

SITE OF EVENT

The site of this event, which has been variously billed as the sport's game of the year, decade and century, is Houston's Astrodome, where some 55,000 persons—more than double the largest crowd ever to have seen a college basketball contest—are expected to attend.

But, as some of our great sportswriters have often written, how cruel is fate. The good people of Houston are, after all, not really going to the game to root for their university to beat UCLA. What they really are going for is to root for Houston's to beat Alcindor. It has never been done by a college team.

Will he play? No burning question of our time has touched me quite so deeply. The sad timing of his injury has all but shattered the great contest for me already. If he plays, I will feel he is probably not up to par anyway. If he wins, I will imagine it is like watching Nureyev carry on with a sprained ankle. If he loses, I will commit suicide. If he fails to play and UCLA wins anyway, I will deny ever being concerned about the outcome.

CAGE FAN

As I say, you must understand. I have watched every minute of every UCLA game this season. All road games are televised live. All home contests are played back on television the night of action.

This is a team that has never been beaten, and, regardless of Saturday's outcome, is the best there is, and ever has been in college ranks. On a neutral court, with a healthy Alcindor, there would simply be no doubt as to the outcome. Before 55,000 screaming Houston fans, with an imperfect Alcindor, who knows? The big man's eye, rather than the crowd, is the key.

He is awesome, magnificent, graceful, unselfish, and will be the most dominant basketball athlete ever seen when he becomes a professional. If Houston is defeated, UCLA will probably go unbeaten for three years, and will certainly set the record for consecutive victories. As of yesterday, the big man sat in a dark hospital room, in reported pain, his vision blurred. The really important thing, of course, is to make sure he gets no permanent injury. A single game is not as important. He is an incredible athlete, and he will bring pleasure to fans for years to come.

Suspended Sentence On Worthless Check

Peter Djurovic of no known address was given a suspended state prison sentence yesterday and ordered to spend eight months in county jail for passing a bad check for $175.76 June 19 at the Motel Alto, 817 Redwood Highway, Alto.

Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley placed Djurovic on five years probation for the crime.

EDWIN JOHNSON
Heads San Rafael bank

Wells Fargo Branch Has New Manager

Edwin Johnson has been promoted to vice president and manager of Wells Fargo Bank's San Rafael office and the North Bay district.

He succeeds Daniel C. Davis, who recently moved to Los Angeles as vice president and manager of the Pershing Square office, the bank's first branch office in Southern California.

Previously assistant vice president and manager of the Country Club Center office in Sacramento, Johnson started with Wells Fargo in 1940.

Serving in several San Francisco offices, he became assistant manager of the Broadway-Grant Avenue branch in 1950 and manager of the cashier's department at the head office in 1958.

He was made assistant vice president and manager of the Pol-California office four years later and assigned to Sacramento in 1963.

He and his wife and their three children live in San Rafael.

Hub Lions Planning To Reactivate Scouts

A committee of the San Anselmo Lions Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Jan 24 at Isabel Cook School to name leaders and plan for the first meeting for Troop 15, which the club is reactivating.

Committee members are Richard A. Schumaker, Nikolai S. Vasileff, Pieter Toal, Michael Young and George R. Fish.

State Demos Favor Pro-LBJ Delegation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A majority of California Democrats favor a convention delegation pledged to the renomination of President Johnson—the first time he has enjoyed such support—the State Poll reports.

The poll reported last September that 39 per cent of California's Democrats would vote for a "peace delegation" to the party's national convention and 42 per cent would support a slate of delegates pledged to Johnson.

The new State Poll counted 63 per cent as favoring a Johnson-supporting delegation headed by Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch, 18 per cent favoring a delegation pledged to Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and 19 per cent unsure of their support.

These other results were reported:

In a choice between Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., for the presidential nomination, California Democrats gave Johnson 49 per cent and Kennedy 43 per cent.

In a choice between Johnson and McCarthy, it was 73 per cent for Johnson and 18 for McCarthy.

In a choice between McCarthy and Vice President Hubert Humphrey for the presidential nomination, it was Humphrey 53 per cent and McCarthy 25. In a choice between Kennedy and Humphrey, it was Kennedy 58 per cent and Humphrey 29 per cent.

Livermore Slated As Conservation Session Speaker

Norman B. Livermore of San Rafael, administrator of resources for the State of California, will speak on "Conservation Challenges of the '70s" at an all-day conservation conference Friday in Santa Rosa.

The Redwood Region Conservation Council will sponsor the meeting at the El Rancho-Tropicana Motel. Livermore will speak at 7:30 p.m.

Jane Westerberger of Tiburon, a conservation officer with the U. S. Forest Service, will be a member of a panel discussion of "Conservation Education Today." Other discussions will center on anti-litter campaigns and forest fire

The conservation council is a privately sponsored, non-profit organization.

Hospital Personnel Director To Resign

Gary Nelson of San Anselmo will resign as personnel director of Marin General Hospital at the end of the month to become personnel manager for A. O. Instrument Co., Richmond.

Nelson held the hospital job three years. A. O. Instrument Co. is a manufacturer of hospital and laboratory equipment. Nelson, of 9 Brookside Drive, will remain on the employment committee of the county Human Rights Commission.

April 9 Election On Council Agenda

A resolution calling a city election April 9 will be considered by the Sausalito City Council at 8 p.m. today in the council chamber.

The terms of Mayor Mel Wax, councilmen Alexander R. Imlay and Eleanor O'Hara Chapin and treasurer Edwin S. Long will expire this year.

The council will also hold hearings on the 1967 uniform building code, a sign appeal by the Behavior Therapy Institute at 300 Valley Street and a variance application by Albert Couderc at 400 Caldeonia Street.

MEADERS searches out and makes needed minor repairs on your clothes—before they become major annoyances. At no extra cost, of course. Buttons, snaps and hooks are replaced; open seams and drooping hems are stitched into place. Meaders sees to it that your clothes are ready to go when you are. (And while we're on the subject, Meaders also does expert alterations and tailoring.)

U. S. May Join Big Four Tennis Power Play

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States apparently is preparing to join the other major tennis-playing nations—Britain, France and Australia—in a giant power play to force open competition.

"These are the four countries who founded the International Lawn Tennis Federation," Robert Kellher of Los Angeles, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association told a press conference yesterday.

"They are the only ones who have ever won the Davis Cup. If they stick together, they should carry the day."

The British, in a bold and rebellious move, already have announced that, effective April 22, they will abolish the distinction between amateurs and professionals and stage the famed Wimbledon tournament as an open event.

The ILTF has warned that, if they do, the British will be suspended from all international competition and barred from the Davis Cup. The British say they're going ahead.

Meanwhile, there's considerable behind-the-scenes maneuvering in France, Australia and the United States.

"I have been going around the country talking to the various sectional associations," Kelleher said. "The Texas and Western Associations are in favor of letting our players compete at Wimbledon. They oppose abolishing the distinction between amateurs and professionals.

"The Northern California Association (San Francisco) wants to go all the way with the British. I am here talking to the Eastern and New England Associations, the two biggest. I find many in favor of giving open tennis a chance."

The USLTA makes its important decision Feb. 3 in Coronado, Calif., when it votes on three issues: 1. Permitting U.S. players to compete at Wimbledon; 2. Abolishing the "amateur" designation and permitting all tournament players to be merely "players"; 3. Placing both pro and amateur tennis under the wing of the USLTA.

"I can't project a prediction, but I am sure open tennis will come. We must face up to it."

France has aligned itself with Britain. Australia's meeting is scheduled Jan. 30, with sentiment apparently favoring at least consent to let Australian players compete at Wimbledon.

Kelleher said the United States had joined in an appeal to the ILFT for a special meeting this spring to reconsider its stand. The ILTF voted overwhelmingly against open tennis at its regular session last July.

The United States, Britain, France and Australia have only 12 votes each—48 in all—among a total of 288. A two-thirds vote is necessary to change the rules.

"If the big four nations are together on the matter, I feel sure most of the others will follow," Kelleher said. "The trouble in the past is that we have lacked communication."

Many of the top American players, including Billie Jean King, Arthur Ashe, Charley Pasarell and cliff Richey, have threatened to play at Wimbledon in the face of suspension.

If open tennis is adopted, Kelleher said, the Davis Cup probably would lose some of its glamor and another international competition possibly would be formed among the pros to determine the world's tennis championship.

AAU Dishes Out New Threats To Athletes Could Cost Them Trip To Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Ryun of Kansas, the world's fastest miler, and Dave Patrick of Villanova, presently rounding into the best shape of his sub-four-minute-mile career, may run the mile against each other Feb. 9.

The recae would probably be the high point of the 1968 indoor track and field season. And it could—in theory at least—cost Ryun, Patrick and some 200 other athletes a chance to go to the Olympics.

The Amateur Athletic Union fired the latest round in its long battle with the National Collegiate Athletic Association yesterday. The target was the Feb. 9 track meet in New York run by the U.S. Track and Field Federation, an arm of the NCAA.

COLLEGIATES

The meet, called the Madison Square Garden Invitational, will feature mostly college stars, such as Ryun, Patrick, long-distance champion Gerry Lindgren and pole vault record-holder Bob Seagren.

But three of those scheduled to run—Tommie Smith of San Jose State, Charlie Greene of Nebraska and Wade Bell of Oregon—are no longer eligible for college competition, though they are still at their respective schools.

The AAU maintains it must sanction any meet in which non-collegians participate. The Federation will "absolutely not" ask for such a sanction, a spokesman said yesterday.

SUSPENSIONS

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the AAU, said that any athlete competing in the meet will be reported to the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which in turn will suspend his eligibility for international events such as the Olympics.

"It would be automatic," Hull said. "The IAAF has told us specifically that in their judgment all athletes competing in open competition not sanctioned by us lose their eligibility."

As a practical matter, it is extremely unlikely that things would ever get that far. If 200 top American athletes, including Ryun, were declared ineligible for the Olympics, the halls of Congress would surely shake to such an extent that matters would be put right.

Still, the situation is serious and the next move apparently will come from the federal panel that for more than two years has been trying to settle the dispute.

KHEEL

Theodore Kheel, the lawyer and labor negotiator who heads the committee, yesterday reacted to the AAU pronouncement by saying the decision of his committee "will be down before Feb. 9 and we think it should cover this or any other situation."

In Los Altos, the reaction of the Rev. W. H. Crowley, president of the Federation, was a bit more caustic.

"There is no rule," Father Crowley said, "of the IAAF stating that an athlete must compete domestically only in AAU-sanctioned meets. The only way

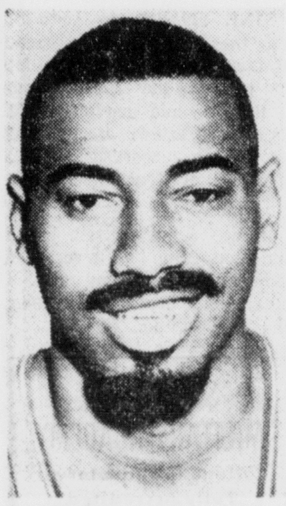
JIM GILMARTIN

He'll Be Tallest Man In Bret Harte Heights

WELCOME, NEIGHBOR — Residents of San Rafael's Bret Harte Heights will be interested to know they soon may have the tallest neighbor this side of the Rockies.

Would you believe Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain, all 7 feet, 1 inch, 275 pounds of him?

The Philadealphia 76ers' great center will be in Marin Thursday and is expected to sign final papers for his purchase of a $115,000 home at 58 Bret Harte Lane. The secluded 3,000-square foot "pad" contains four bedrooms and four and one-half baths, plus a suna bath.



WILT CHAMBERLAIN

A friend of Wilt's said the NBA star.". . .just wants a place that he can call home." Chamberlain, by the way, is a bachelor.

Think of the local angles we can glean out of THIS cat. "NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain of San Rafael tonight smashed the NBA scoring record. . ." etc. etc.

Also, do you suppose he will hang a hoop on his garage and play hunch with the kids in the neighborhood? Maybe the San Rafael Recreation Department can induce him into playing in the Adult Basketball League.

Welcome, Wilt. And I hope your new pad has high doorways.

Talk About Absent-Mindedness

The coach, an intense person who often misplaces names of his own players in the heat of battle, was giving his Royals a pep talk before a big game with Philadelphia.

"Now Smitty, you'll have to keep your eyes on that Greer . . . and Luke, you've got Jackson. Hap you're on Walker. And Connie . . . you've got whatsis name . . . uh . . . the big guy in the middle there for Philly."

Here Are Two For Price Of One

PEACOCK PACT — And speaking of local angles, today I am happy to offer you two for the price of one concerning this week's $125,000 Kaiser International Golf Tournament at Napa.

All along you thought 22-year-old Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael would be Marin's only entrant in the PGA's first annual wine festival in the Napa Valley.

But, heh-heh-heh, old Shamus must remind you once again that famed Billy Casper also falls into the local category.

In March of 1965 Casper signed a three-year contract with Peacock Gap Country Club owner Jerome Draper Jr. to represent the San Rafael course on the PGA tour. In return for an estimated 15 thou per annum, all Casper had to do was sign "Peacock Gap, Calif." on tournament entry blanks for publicity purposes.

It Could Have Been Worse

Well, in the meantime Mr. Draper sold most of his Peacock Gap holdings, but retained ownership to the Peacock Gap Beach, Racquet and Swim Club — and Casper's contract.

The last I heard the contract is in force for two more months and Casper is still the only touring golf professional who officially represents a beach, racquet and swim club. How about THAT?

But, really, Casper should feel fortunate that Draper did not go into some other business. Like diaper service, hair styling, garbage collecting, lingerie, sanitary engineering or baby sitting. How would Casper explain that to the boys in the locker room?

31 More On Kaiser Golf List

NAPA (AP)—Scores of the 31 qualifiers for the $125,000 Kaiser International golf tournament at the Silverado Country Club ranged from 69 to 73 in elimination play yesterday.

Dave Eichelberger of Waco, Tex., and Bob Stone of Independence, Mo., turned in 69s to lead the 128 men who played the Silverado South and Kennedy Municipal courses.

Pro - am competition starts tomorrow with the professionals getting down to business on Thursday on the Silverado North course.

Eichelberger and Stone both played the Kennedy course. Other top scorers, all with 70s, were Elderidge Miles of Dallas, Ty Caplin of El Cerrito, Al Kelley of Chapin, Mass., Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., John Cook of Jonesboro, Ark., and Jack Montgomery of Fort Worth.

On the Silverado South course, Don Miller of Cleveland led with a 70. Tied at 71 were Jim Wiechers of Palo Alto; Ken Burnette of West Caldwell, N.J.; Monte Sanders of Santa Barbara, Calif.; Larry Wise of Washington, D.C., and Barry Meerdink of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sharman's Run-Run Game Doesn't Work This Time

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Sharman, who starred for the Boston Celtics before retiring to the coaching ranks, figures the only way to beat his old team is to run, run, run.

Sharman was convinced more than ever his strategy was correct as his San Francisco Warriors took two straight from the Celtics within the past month.

Now he may not be so sure.

The Warriors ran well, but found a stiff Boston defense too tough last night as the Celtics charged to a 111-102 victory after the Seattle Supersonics belted the New York Knicks 129-113 in the opener of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at the Garden.

No other NBA games were scheduled.

In ABA action, New Orleans edged Indiana 108-107 and Kentucky turned back Houston 115-102.

"They ran pretty good on us at times, but it was just one of those nights for us," Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell said. "We didn't do anything we haven't done before. We just worked better."

Russell wasn't too convincing in attempts to disregard suggestions he may have out-foxed Sharman, who led the Warriors to the NBA's final playoff round in his first year last spring.

To offset San Francisco's running game, Russell substituted freely calling on fresh troops to keep pace with the Warriors. The Celtics employed 10 players, San Francisco only seven.

Two Boston rookies, 6-foot-7 Johnny Jones and Mal Graham, saw plenty of action and played key roles in the victory. Jones scored 10 points in 21 minutes of play, while Graham had 12 in 38 minutes.

Russell let John Havlicek, 28, and Sam Jones, 27, take care of the Boston scoring as he concentrated on defense, outplaying Nate Thurmond. Russell, who played 43 minutes, scored 12 points and had 21 rebounds.

Rudy LaRusso and Fred Hetzel were San Francisco's big guns. LaRusso connected for 27 points before fouling out, while Hetzel had 25.

Alcindor Might Miss Key Game In Houston

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Unveiling their "non-Alcindor offense," the UCLA Bruins are preparing to play Houston in a crucial basketball game next Saturday without their injured star Lew Alcindor.

PROGRESSING

Alcindor is "progressing well" and may be released within a day or two, the clinic spokesman says, but Bruin Coach John Wooden is taking no chances even though he's not sure big Lew won't play.

"We haven't practiced the high-post. If we get him the ball, I don't think there are college players who can stop him from scoring."

In Houston, the top - rated Bruins face the nation's No. 2 team. If UCLA has to play without Alcindor, Edgar Lacey, a 6-foot-6 forward, would probably move to the high post. Wooden said Lacey is the team's best defensive player and would guard Houston's Elvin Hayes.

BASED ON LEW

"I think we'd have a fine team without Alcindor even if we hadn't had him all year," Wooden said. But the 20 - year Bruin coach conceded, this year's offense is based around Lew.

"In last Friday's game against California, we attempted to get the ball into Alcindor 48 times. We succeeded 47 times and 31 of those times the play resulted in a score," Wooden said.

Last Dec. 22, as the Bruins were demolishing Bradley, 109-73, Alcindor also suffered an eye injury and was removed from the game.

EXTREME PAIN

At first, Friday's injury was considered slight. After a check at the Stanford medical facility, the agile All-American sat out of UCLA's 75-63 triumph over Stanford—the first game he has missed at UCLA.

Alcindor had suffered extreme pain and blurred vision Sunday night.

"It wouldn't be fair to him or to our team to play on national TV — and before that large crowd—if he's not all right," Wooden said of the game at Houston's Astrodome.

SILVERADO COURSE

Napa A Rugged Test For Pros

"It's not going to be easy to tame this course." The blond crew-cut professional looked out over the North Course at Silverado Country Club and smiled. "Some of those holes will give 'em fits, and if the weather is a factor they'll really earn their money."

Craig Williamson, the Silverado professional, paused in his preparations for this week's $125,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament, just long enough to add that, "It'll be a great opening test for the pros on the 1968 Winter Tour."

Barry Sutherland, the young Canadian who is first assistant at Silverado, pointed out that "if the weather is balmy, the scores will be low, but if there's wind or rain, the scores will balloon."

The Robert Trent Jones designed course is a gently rolling, generally level complex of mature oaks and pines, well guarded with creeks and lakes, liberally sprinkled with ingeniously placed sand traps culminating in a series of devilishly difficult — by design — greens. Sutherland noted that the course "is a demanding one, with a hellish collection of par-three holes, and with very little symapthy for the golfer who is not superbly accurate."

GOOD OPENER

The 405-yard par-4 first hole doglegs to the right through a grove of large trees. It provides a good opening hole with a gentle green.

The 200-yard second is the first of the long par-3s. It demands a long accurate shot uphill to a partially blind green. A trap to the right conceals the depth of the green which extends 30 to 40 feet behind the bunker.

The prevailing wind comes into play on the sixth, a par-4, 440 yarder. The fairway doglegs to the left with an out of bounds to the right and is heavily trapped on the left. It generally requires two woods to reach the gentle, not-too-difficult green safely.

EASY SEVENTH

The 195-yard seventh hole is the shortest of the par-3s and, save for its length, is not considered as being too difficult.

An exacting amount of finesse is required on the par-4, 335-yard eighth hole. This is a superb short hole played from a funnel tee among the trees on the west side of the creek. An accurate tee shot is essential with placement a must on this hole. To the right is a water hazard and to yarder — is similarly guarded by another giant oak that looms in a menacing manner midway on the downhill fairway. A long second shot is required to the elevated but extremely shallow green, which is, of course, trapped in front.

The monstrously long (565¼ yards) par-5 fifth hole is a double dogleg paralleled by an out of bounds road along the left. Two extremely well placed shots are needed here to thread the needle through what appears to be a sea of traps approaching the green. Accuracy here pays the left a mass of deep trees and rocks with a bunker about 250 yards from the tee. A relatively short second shot is needed to carry the uphill green.

The ninth hole doglegs downhill to the left. This par-5, 575-yard challenge is bordered on the right by Milliken Creek and is heavily timbered on the left. The third shot is the key here, requiring an accurate placing to hit the elevated but shallow green.

DIABOLICAL 10TH

A longish doglegged par-4, 415-yarder bordered by two diabolical stands of oaks marks the 10th hole. A long tee shot is demanded to the left while avoiding the trees alongside that edge of the fairway. The second shot requires avoiding the overhang from the copse along the right edge, which serves to screen the green.

Comments on the 205-yard par-3 11th, range from "prettiest" to "most beautiful." The long shot from the elevated tee must bear left to avoid the overhang of the trees and across a large lake to an artfully contoured green surrounded by two traps with a backdrop of still more trees. Scenically, this hole will be a favorite gallery spot.

The 12th is a straightaway 365-yard par-4 that is out of bounds on the right side with a complex of traps along the left and around the long rolling green. The prevailing winds come into play on the 13th, a strong par-4 that is 412 yards long. The hole is well trapped down the left side of the fairway and along the left side of the green as well. A line of trees along the right side presents more problems.

ACCURATE DRIVES

Although it is sometimes referred to as a breather, "you can't go to sleep" on the par-4 short doglegged 14th. This 385-yard hole is trapped on one side and out of bounds on the other, requiring an accurate tee placement.

Another par-3 comes up on the 15th and its 205 yards can wreck an otherwise pleasant outing. A large tiered green is guarded by, in front and at right, a small pond. Furthermore, the wind is a factor and a 2-iron shot is recommended for most players. "Being on the green really means little," Sutherland said. "Frankly, it's a tough green to putt from any angle." Professionals who have played the North Course feel that the 15th should produce a bumper crop of bogies.

A tree-lined stream guards the left side of the narrow 16th, a 526-yard par-5 hole, and the right is protected by a tangled rough and several large, well placed trees. Accuracy is very important with both tee and second shots on the fairway that slopes to the left.

DEMANDS FINESSE

Finesse is called for on the 17th that doglegs to the left. This 345-yard par-4 is guarded by heavy trapping on the left and a lone tree among the bunkers. A large mature tree on the right forces a well placed tee shot and a pitch onto the green in the midst of traps calling for a maximum of nerve and execution.

A strong finishing hole is supplied on the 18th with a long straight par-5 into the prevailing wind. Two large fairway traps on the right require an accurate tee shot. This 545-yarder may supply the tournament winner on an open fairway and a relatively flat green.

WATER SKIING AT THE COW PALACE

Sharon Bovie, 16, of Novato shows off the ingenious "Ski Nautique" exhibit at the San Francisco National Sports and Boat Show in progress through next Sunday at the Cow Palace. Clinging to a stationary tow rope while water moved under her skies at speeds up to 20 mph, Miss Bovie performed a series of stunts and maneuvers to show off the versatility of the 12 by 20-foot trainer. Her father, Cal Bovie, is supervising demonstrations at the Ski Nautique exhibit.

JACK HANLEY

Scottish Caster Wows Sports Show Audience

Peter Anderson floated the fly into the target circle at the far end of the pool with a flawless cast that made 70 feet of trout line sing. A Cow Palace crowd of Sports and Boat Show enthusiasts applauded the accuracy of the Scottish casting champ.

Just to make sure noboby suspected his cast was a fluke, Anderson completed a dozen more at varying distances and all hit the heart of target areas. The crowd was convinced that a trout wouldn't have much chance against Anderson.

Deceiving a fish into taking a lure, artificial or live, is the basic idea of fishing. All anglers understand this fundamental principle. The difficulty for most is delivering the lure to a spot where a trout can mouth it.

ANDERSON'S CASTING accuracy makes it appear very simple. And distance is no problem for the kilted gentleman from Kirkintilloch. Among his dozen professional titles is a salmon spinning distance record of 106 meters (345 feet).

How did Anderson acquire such proficiency at what once was just his hobby but now is both hobby and profession? He smiles at such naive questions but answers politely.

"A SPOT of daily practice is required," he said, not smartalecky but matter-of-factly.

There is nothing flip about Anderson. He is a colorful showman in his clan's tartan. But he isn't a showoff. He is a very popular lecturer in Scotland on fishing.

"I try not to lecture," said Anderson. "But I enjoy friendly chats about fishing."

ANDERSON'S INFORMAL and relaxed attitude with audiences is the reason Tom Rooney, director of the Sports and Boat Show, flew him from Scotland to San Francisco by jet plane. Rooney was well aware of the way Anderson drew sellout crowds to friendly chats about fishing in Edinburgh.

Three years ago Anderson drew a crow of 18,000 to one of his talks. The following year another speaker was substituted for Anderson. Only 3,000 turned out. Last year Anderson was back on the program and he drew 21,000.

NINE YEARS ago Anderson won the British and European Amateur Casting Championship and repeated the following year in 1960. He had just turned 30. He decided to turn pro, quitting his job as Scottish sales manager for a prominent London firm.

"It was a big decision," said Anderson. "But I've never been happier being on my own. I guess that's because I'm doing what I love to do."

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Are lefthanders at a disadvantage in bowling? No, they are not. Some of the best professionals in the country are lefties. Young Millie Ignizio of Rochester, N. Y., is a fine example. Lefthanders should take one precaution. Because no other southpaw may have bowled from their side of the approach that day, they should be sure to take a few practice slides to be certain that the surface of the approach is smooth.

National Record Set At Marin Pistol Matches

Forty-three shooters braved rain and cold weather to compete in the Tamalpais Revolver Club's first match of the year at the San Rafael Police Pistol Range Sunday.

John Miller of Long Beach set a national record on the National Rifle Association match course with a 297 score out of a possible 300. The veterinary medicine student finished with an aggregate score of 1,421 out of 1,500.

TUNING FOR LAST ONE — Baltimore Colt quarterback Johnny Unitas hands off to Chicago Bear Halfback Gayle Sayers (40) while Bill Brown of the Minnesota Vikings watches. The trio was working out in Los Angeles in preparation for the final NFL game of the season—the East-West Pro Bowl to be played Sunday.

West Favored In Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Western Conference All-Stars today were installed 7½-point favorites over the Eastern Conference team in Sunday's 18th National Football League Pro Bowl game.

The oddsmakers went with the West team despite its loss of a key defensive player, Los Angeles Rams safety Eddie Meador, who developed a case of mumps and had to be replaced by rookie Baltimore safety Rick Volk.

SORE NECK

Meador had gone through yesterday's picture-taking session and light workout. After practice his neck began bothering him and Meador went to a private physician who determined the defensive veteran was suffering from mumps. He was ordered home by the doctor.

Physicians said, however, that the chances were remote that any of the other players might have been exposed to the disease in so short a time.

Although both teams were scheduled to hold their first workout yesterday, the West squad was short nine men due to the late arrival of the Green Bay Packers contingent.

FLEW IN

Following their Super Bowl victory over the Oakland Raiders, the nine Packers flew from Miami to Los Angeles by way of a Chicago stopover and did not arrive until 5 a.m. Coach Don Shula of Baltimore, who is handling the West team, excused the Packers from participating in the first day of activities.

Shula felt that sleep would be better for the Packers on the team than a light workout, since they had been drilling for weeks in preparation for the Super Bowl.

LION AT UCLA

One other member of the West team, rookie Mel Farr of the Detroit Lions, missed the first day of practice because he was enrolling at UCLA for the spring quarter.

Coach Otto Graham's Eastern Conference team previously had suffered its losses when Sonny Jurgensen of the Redskins was forced to drop out because of a sore elbow. He was replaced by Don Meredith of the Dallas Cowboys who won the Eastern Conference championship.

And St. Louis center Bob DeMarco withdrew from the East team when his wife became ill. He was replaced by Jim Ringo, a 15-year NFL veteran from the Philadelphia Eagles.

All-Star Hockey Tonight

TORONTO (AP) — The National Hockey League's 21st annual All-Star game—stripped of its usual glitter by the death of Minnesota forward Bill Masterton—pits Toronto's defending Stanley Cup champions against standouts from the other 11 NHL clubs tonight.

Prior to the opening faceoff in Maple Leaf Gardens, a crowd of more than 15,000 will pay a moment of silent tribute to the memory of Masterton, who died early yesterday from a brain injury suffered in a game last weekend against the Oakland Seals.

"It was a shock," NHL President Clarence Campbell said of the tragedy—first of its kind in the league's 51-year history. "But the game will go on."

ROSTERS

The mid-season classic matches first and second team All-Stars, selected at the close of the 1966-67 season, plus a complement of players including one from each of the six new expansion clubs against the Cup champs, currently fourth in the league's East Division.

Gordie Howe, Detroit's magnificent, 22-year veteran, will be making a record 19th appearance in the All-Star game. Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, Chicago's high-scoring tandem, each will be skating in the Stars' line-up for the sixth straight year.

Hull, Mikita and Chicago teammate Ken Wharram were first-team All-Star picks last spring along with defensemen Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks and Harry Howell of New York, and Rangers' goalie Ed Giacomin.

TO SECOND TEAM

Howe was named to the second team with forwards Norm Ullman of Detroit and Don Marshall of New York, defensemen Bobby Orr of Boston and Tim Horton of Toronto, and goalie Glenn Hall, a former Chicago star now with the St. Louis Blues of the new West Division.

Horton will play for Punch Imlach's Maple Leafs, who have won just one of six previous games against the All-Stars.

All-Star pilot Toe Blake of Montreal has filled out his line-up with the addition of Boston forward Johnny Bucyk, three players from his own club—forward Jean Beliveau, and defensemen Jacques Laperriere and J. C. Tremblay—and six from the expansion teams.

BAUN OF SEALS

Representing the West Division, in additional to Hall, will be defenseman Bob Baun of Oakland, forwards Ken Schinkel of Pittsburgh, Leon Rochefort of Philadelphia, Ed Joyal of Los Angeles and Dave Balon of Minnesota, and goalie Terry Sawchuk of Los Angeles.

Gus Triandos Becomes Cal Assistant Baseball Coach

COMBINED AP & UPI

BERKELEY — Gus Triandos, the former big league catcher, will don his big glove again this season as assistant coach for California's baseball team.

Head coach George Wolfman, for whom Triandos played at San Francisco's Mission High School 21 years ago, announced yesterday that Triandos would join the staff. He mainly will work with the receivers, outfielders and help supervise batting practice.

Triandos, 37, was signed by the New York Yankees as a high school star then played seven seasons at Baltimore where he was named to the American League all star team of 1955 and 1956.

He finished his playing career at Philadelphia and Houston.

HOCKEY

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League sent forward Gene Umbriaco to their Baltimore farm club of the American Hockey League.

SKIING

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Eleven skiers have been chosen to represent the United States in the cross-country and Nordic combined competition in the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France.

BASEBALL

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson, who posted three World Series victories last fall, said yesterday he turned down a contract mailed to him at his home in Omaha, Neb., by General Manager Big Devine.

"I received a contract and I returned it," Gibson said. "It wasn't even close to what I have in mind."

GENERAL

ELIZABETH, N.J. — A former bartender at Newark Airport, who said that New York Daily News sports columnist Dick Young libeled him by accusing him of shortchanging baseball star Mickey Mantle, was awarded $20,000 yesterday by a Superior Court jury.

William Gross of Colonia, N.J., said that Young, in columns written June 13 and June 27, 1965, had claimed Mantle had been shortchanged $5 when he left $20 on the bar to pay for drinks. The suit stemmed from an incident in the airport's bar on June 6, 1965, where Mantle and other New York Yankees were waiting for a plane.

12-Year-Old Boy Bowls Perfect 300

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Dale Mesenbrink did something Sunday that most bowlers never accomplish in a lifetime. He rolled a perfect game.

The Milwaukee youngster ran the 12 straight strikes in practice at the Echow Bowl. The American Bowling Congress said he was the youngest bowler in history to shoot a 300 game.

The youngest shooter previously listed was 13-year-old Billy Bybee of Long Beach who shot a perfect game Nov. 29, 1964.

The 5-foot-4, 180-pound Mesenbrink, who called himself very lucky, got crossover strikes in the fifth, eighth and ninth frames. But when a newsan told him no apologies were necessary for crossover strikes, he said, "That's what they told me the trick is to knock them all down."

He opened with a 181 game and closed with the same total for a series count of 662.

"It is time for the Justice Department of the United States and the courts of this country to call a halt to such un-American practices in amateur sports and provide protection for our athletes."

The news of Ryun's participation in the meet, which came yesterday in a letter from his coach, Bob Timmon, was a big boost for the troubled federation, which could not conceal its glee at the prospect of matching him with Patrick in the mile.

Ryun is the most glamorous figure in track, he has not appeared in New York in two years and this would be his only eastern appearance. His duel with Patrick in the half mile at the NCAA indoor championships last year, won by Patrick with a headlong dive, was a classic.

Anglers To Be Paid For Catching Trout This Year In Shasta Lake

STEVENS

"Turn about is fair play." We usually have to ante up a dollar for a stamp on an angling license when fishing for trout or Kamloop Salmon. But this year we will be paid for catching them if we fish for Kamloops in the huge Shasta Lake. And we happen to reel in a tagged fish.

How come? It's simple. The California Kamloops, Inc., a sportsmen's organization, is putting up a part of a fund, and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. comes through with a greater part to bring this fund to $4,500.

To date, the most spectacular trout fishing has been in the fall and winter months when the fish are caught near the surface. So, why not garb yourself in warm clothing and give Lake Shasta a tryout? It is being currently stocked with 8-inch trout. These planted trout have plenty to eat from the many threadfin shad now abundant in the lake. As a result planted trout grow fat and saucy. To about 2½ pounds in only one year, and after two years they grow to around five pounds.

HERE'S AN item of good news to that hardy segment of California fishermen who dig hard for clams. For the second year in a row, there has been a good hatch of Pismo clams at Morro Bay and Pismo Beach. Those of legal size now being dug at Morro Bay are almost all 23 to 26 years old; they are easy to find in waist-deep water whenever there is a good minus tide.

THE OVER-ALL picture of local angling is not too rosy. Some nice catches — some limits — of stripers have been recorded in San Pablo Bay, from about Point Wilson to the Rock Wall across from Rodeo. In the Napa River some swell hauls of fat flounders have been taken by the few anglers willing to buck the chill in the air. The Suisun Bay has been slow as has Big and Little Honker bays; The back country seems to offer fair to good fishing for stripers, cats and sturgeon, but as in all areas, the blustering, frigid weather has kept the anglers away.

Black Bass, Crappies and Catfish have furnished some fair to good angling in Clear Lake but the number of fishermen trying their luck has been very low. Ditto at Lake Berryessa, where the hardier souls have harvested a mixed bag of trout, largemouth bass and catfish.

IT WON'T BE long now for the opening of ocean salmon trolling south of Tomales Point (Feb. 17). What condition is your tackle in?

The party-boat skippers have been busy (still are) dolling up their craft in anticipation. Sports anglers should prepare for the coming season by inspecting their rods — rewinding guides if necessary, testing lines and leaders, sharpening hooks and stocking up with needed tackle and, if spoons or spinners will be used, cleaning and polishing them.

Boats Draw Big Crowds

Inflated rubber boats and the numerous skin diving exhibits are among the attention-getters at the 26th annual San Francisco National Sports and Boat Show, which continues through Sunday at the Cow Palace.

Among the show's largest-ever display of inflated rubber boats, the new inflatable sled and the Lazy Lounger, an inflatable floating chaise lounge, are attracting large crowds. The boats, including the smallest in the show — a 24-inch child's boat — and the Speedyak 300, a versatile boat said to be the answer for the needs of fishermen, duck hunters and skin divers, are also among the hits.

DIVING DISPLAY

Skin diving is on the uptrend if the enthusiastic throng gathered at the skin diving exhibits is any indication. Among the skin diving schools with exhibits side by side at the entrance to the South Hall of the historic Cow Palace are the Bamboo Reef from San Rafael, Ed Brawley of San Mateo and the San Francisco Skin Diving School.

Other crowd-pleasers are the many makes of guns on Gun Row, the largest boat in the show — the 50-foot Tollycraft "Discoverer" — and the "Ski Nautique," the world's first indoor water ski trainer.

Show times are 2-11 p.m., daily; 11 a.m., to 11 p.m., Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Sunday.

Mumps Sidelines Rams' Ed Meador

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A case of the mumps will keep Los Angeles Ram defensive back Ed Meador from playing in his fifth Pro-Bowl game.

Meador came down with the illness yesterday. He is to be replaced by Baltimore Colt rookie Rick Volk.

New Foreign Language School For Marinites Being Developed

A new foreign language school for Marin residents is now being developed by Mrs. William E. Brennan of San Anselmo.

To be known as Foreign Language Institue, it will give instruction in 10 different languages, drawing qualified teachers from San Francisco State College. Mrs. Brennan herself speaks three European languages. Classes as expected to begin about March 1.

There will be three categories of instruction: A six-weeks "quick learn" course for travelers and business executives, with two two-hour sessions a week; classes for minors from seven to 18 years of age on Saturdays; and regular evening classes for adults. Groups will be limited to 10 students in each class.

Registrations are now being accepted, although Mrs. Brennan is still looking for a suitable building for the school. She may be contacted by mail by writing to Box 301, San Anselmo.

ACE LETTER SERVICE, San Rafael has installed a new offset press, twice the size of its previous press, and now has a new Xerox 10-cents coin-operated copy machine, which customers may use themselves for confidential documents.

Ace will continue its regular duplicating work and now has one offset press set aside for printing while you wait. If no one is ahead of you, generally you can get your completed printing job in the time it takes to sip a cup of coffee — which Ace also furnishes.

The company also provides litho negatives and plates for other firms that that have their own presses.

GENERAL BUSINESS SERVICES has moved its San Rafael office from 496 B Street to 506 Third Street, next to Stan's for Sports.

Heberling

Hudson

HERBERT A. HEBERLING of Corte Madera, chief of the international trade division at the San Francisco field office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, has been appointed a member of the U.S. Trade and Investment Mission to Pakistan next month.

The mission, consisting of five businessmen and two Department of Commerce representatives, will visit major cities in East and West Pakistan on a month-long trip starting Feb. 3. As trade development officer, it will be Heberling's responsibility for the organization and reporting of trade opportunities made available by the group.

ROBERT C. HUDSON of San Rafael has been appointed general freight traffic manager, rates and divisions, for Southern Pacific Co. He joined the company in 1943 at Chicago and was promoted to assistant general freight agent at San Francisco in 1954, moving up to freight traffic manager in 1963.

WILLIAM L. McGEE of Sleepy Hollow has been promoted to sales manager of Kaiser Broadcasting's KBHK-TV Channel 44 in San Francisco. He has been an account executive at the station which went on the air the first of this month.

Stock Market Drops; Trade Fairly Active

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed sharply lower today. Trading was fairly active.

Losses outnumbered gains by more than 200 issues.

After five days of conflicting action, in which gains outscored losses but averages declined, the market was in gear on the downside.

Gulf & Western was the most active stock, off a fraction, followed by Armour, fractionally higher. The companies are talking about a merger.

American Smelting and Raytheon were off about 2 each. Down a point or so were Boeing, United Aircraft, General Dynamics, Zenith, Alcoa, Eastman Kodak and General Foods.

Losses of 2 or more points also were taken by New York Central, IBM and Polaroid. Pennsylvania Railroad, American Metal Climax and Eastern Air Lines dropped about a point each.

Among active gainers, Monogram Industries rose about 3½, while Twentieth Century-Fox, Vornado, U.S. Industries and Federal Pacific Electric rose a point or better.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

New General Manager Named

PHILADELPHIA (BW) — John R. Welty will be appointed general manager of Philco-Ford Corp.'s microelectronics division effective Feb. 1, it has been announced.

Welty has been a vice president of Motorola Inc., and director of operations of the semiconductor division at Phoenix.

Shinn Industries Reports Net Gain

SANTA ANA (BW) — Net earnings of Shinn Industries Inc., for the first quarter ended Nov. 30 were $227,096, or 34 cents per share for the 663,438 shares outstanding, Clifford L. Shinn, president, has reported.

Sales for the first three months of the fiscal year were $1,820,564. Comparable figures for the first quarter a year ago are not available, he said.

Advice To Viet Widow: Buy Duplex

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My husband was killed in Vietnam last October. Our infant daughter and I will receive monthly benefits of about $400. I plan to go back to teaching. I have $11,000 life insurance, $23,000 in cash which probably should be at least partly invested in growth securities. What mutual funds or other stocks would you suggest? I have also considered leaving savings accounts undisturbed with the idea of buying a duplex house when I become more settled. — A.W.

A. I offer you my deepest sympathy on the loss of your husband. In your particular situation, with apparent little knowledge of securities, I believe your last idea is the best plan for you. If you can buy a good duplex, well situated, you will feel more secure and you will have an excellent hedge against inflation. Building costs are rising sharply and sound property bought now is almost certain to rise in value as the dollar depreciates. Stocks are good but they need constant watching.

Q. I am an elderly divorced woman with only $6,000 to my name. Social Security payments hardly cover my rent. Is there any way I can invest my money to give me added income? — R.W.

A. I am deeply distressed that there is no pat solution to your problem. The best investment for you, in my opinion, would be a straight life annuity which would pay you a guaranteed monthly income higher than you can obtain from any comparable security. I would put no more than $4,000 into such an annuity, since you should have at least $2,000 as a cash reserve. A $4,000 annuity will not pay a great deal but, since you apparently have no concern about leaving an estate, it might be just enough to supply the added funds you need.

PEOPLE, SALES BIGGER

Extra-Sized Beds A Business Sleeper

That's the word from the National Association of Bedding Manufacturers which reports that 40 times as many big beds were sold last year as were sold 10 years ago.

"Young couples aren't thinking of anything other than kings or queens," says Elaine Bornheutter, president of Hale's Bedding Stores, Inc., in New York City.

Why? People are bigger, they want to be more comfortable and the bigger bed is becoming a prestige item, according to the manufacturers.

Twenty per cent of American men are 6 feet tall or taller against only 4 per cent in 1900. Since 1960 the average man has become seven pounds heavier and the average woman 11 pounds heavier.

Manufacturers expect the interest in bigger beds to push sales this year over the $1 billion mark for the first time. Last year's sales were estimated at $950 million.

And there's another, though smaller, trend in the offing: odd-shaped beds. Among these are round beds and beds made in the shape of a heart, a piano and, for one Long Island couple that shopped at Hale's, a teardrop.
